University of Nebraska - Lincoln
DigitalCommons@University of Nebraska - Lincoln

Fourth Annual National Conference (1999)

People of Color in Predominantly White Institutions

10-15-1999

"NATIVE AMERICAN UNDERREPRESENTATION IN PREDOMINANTLY WHITE INSTITUTIONS"

Helen Long Soldier
Educational Specialist, Multi-Cultural Affairs, University of Nebraska-Lincoln

Dean Flechs
Director, Student Equity and Multi-Cultural Affairs, University of Nebraska Medical Center

Follow this and additional works at: http://digitalcommons.unl.edu/pocpwi4

Part of the Race, Ethnicity and post-Colonial Studies Commons

Long Soldier, Helen and Flechs, Dean, ""NATIVE AMERICAN UNDERREPRESENTATION IN PREDOMINANTLY WHITE INSTITUTIONS"" (1999). Fourth Annual National Conference (1999). Paper 50.
http://digitalcommons.unl.edu/pocpwi4/50

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the People of Color in Predominantly White Institutions at DigitalCommons@University of Nebraska - Lincoln. It has been accepted for inclusion in Fourth Annual National Conference (1999) by an authorized administrator of DigitalCommons@University of Nebraska - Lincoln.

"NATIVE AMERICAN UNDERREPRESENTATION IN PREDOMINANTLY WHITE INSTITUTIONS"

Helen Long Soldier
Educational Specialist, Multi-Cultural Affairs, University of Nebraska-Lincoln
Dean Flechs
Director, Student Equity and Multi-Cultural Affairs, University of Nebraska Medical Center

Helen Long Soldier and Dean Flechs underscore the fact that there has been, and continues to be, an absence of Native American staff and faculty on the vast majority of college campuses. This impedes the attainment of diversity goals established by many institutions by not providing role models to prospective and current Native students, and others interested in an indigenous world view. A diverse staff and faculty is of value to both the academic and surrounding communities for enhancing the classic spirit of a university education and transforming the state of human understanding.