DERRICK A. BELL

Professor of Law, New York University Law School

Lecturer, Scholar

Author of Gospel Choirs: Psalms of Survival in an Alien Land Called Home

A well-known and highly respected legal scholar and law professor, Dr. Derrick A. Bell became Harvard Law School's first Black tenured law professor. Bell has worked for 38 years in various areas of civil rights work in litigation, administration, teaching, and scholarship.

Bell is the author of five books. His text Race, Racism and American Law is in its third edition and is used in civil rights courses at both the law school and undergraduate levels in schools across the country.

Bell's books of allegorical stories on racial issues (Faces at the Bottom of the Well: The Permanence of Racism and We Are Not Saved: The Elusive Quest for Racial Justice) were published in 1987. His most recent books are Confronting Authority: Reflections of an Ardent Professor and Gospel Choirs: Psalms of Survival in an Alien Land Called Home.

In 1989, Bell resigned from the Harvard Law School to become dean at the University of Oregon Law School. There, he resigned in protest when the law school faculty refused to offer a faculty position to an Asian American candidate. Bell has been a visiting professor at the New York University Law School since 1991. In addition to his teaching duties, he lectures and appears frequently on popular radio and television programs.
