Nebraska Anthropologist Volume 20: 2005 Table of Contents

Follow this and additional works at: http://digitalcommons.unl.edu/nebanthro

http://digitalcommons.unl.edu/nebanthro/11

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Anthropology, Department of at DigitalCommons@University of Nebraska - Lincoln. It has been accepted for inclusion in Nebraska Anthropologist by an authorized administrator of DigitalCommons@University of Nebraska - Lincoln.
Table of Contents:

Women and Warfare: How Human Evolution Excluded Women
Brett Kennedy ...........................................................................3

Romantic Love and Marriage: An Analysis of the Concept and Functionality of Romantic Love as a Marital Stabilizing Agent
Emily Sorrell .............................................................................16

Bone Dispersion, Weathering, and Scavenging of Cattle Bones
Melinda Potmesil ........................................................................26

Omaha Metals, Coinage, and Syntax: Outside Influence?
Rory Larson .................................................................................33

Native Americans in Prison: The Struggle for Religious Freedom
Stephanie Beran ........................................................................46

Punitive Behavior in eBay Auctions
Kyle Gibson ................................................................................56

Female and Male Perceptions of Attractiveness: What is Attractive and Why?
Ryan Schacht ..............................................................................63

Theory of Mind in Chimpanzees: A Rationalist Approach
Benjamin Grant Purzycki ...........................................................70

Postpartum Depression: An Evolutionary Perspective
Mark Tracy ................................................................................93

Analysis of Quartz in Northern Wisconsin: Deficiencies, Misconceptions, and Goals
Elizabeth Spott ..........................................................................115

Foraging Behaviors of Alouatta palliata, Mantled Howling Monkeys
Jeffrey A. Baum .........................................................................129

Errata ..........................................................................................141
Errata

Editor’s Note: The following contains a missing paragraph on page 4 of last year’s volume of the Nebraska Anthropologist (Vol. 19).

An illegitimate child is one whose conception and birth did not take place according to the rules which, in its parents’ community, govern reproduction.

But in order to get a clearer idea of what illegitimacy is, one needs to consider those rules: what are they? Are they similar in different societies or do cultures have widely varying rules pertaining to illegitimacy?

In this study, the notions of legitimacy and illegitimacy will be examined in three distinct cultures: the Trobriand Islanders who are a matrilineal society, the Nuer who are a patrilineage, and England, a modern state system. Additionally, the impact of fatherhood, marriage, children’s resource-use rights and a child’s socially accepted inclusion into its society will be investigated with regards to legitimacy and illegitimacy in the aforementioned groups. This analysis will be placed within the framework of Engles’ evolutionary model of the creation of fatherhood leading to the concept of legitimacy.

Editor’s Note: Below is the bibliographical information that was illegible on page 29 of last year’s volume.

