I. GENERAL ACADEMIC PROGRAM INFORMATION

Film Studies Program and the Johnny Carson School of Theatre and Film

The film studies major and minor are interdisciplinary programs with courses in English, art, broadcasting, philosophy, communication studies and music which focus directly or implicitly on the critical, historical, practical and theoretical disciplines of the cinema. In the Johnny Carson School of Theatre and Film, the emphasis is on practical film making, on actors and acting in films, the applications of digital media and digital arts in film editing, computer generated imaging and the history of technological innovation in film.

The research interests of the faculty can be grouped according to historical period, genre, methodology, and authorship.

Library Collections

The library collects at a research level history and art of the film; history and art of directors, specific films, actors; study levels of studies on the techniques and craft of film production, as well as the scientific aspects of film making, animated film, and documentary film where it is applicable to the study of film, the commercial applicability of film, and film theory and criticism.

Materials will be acquired from vendor catalogs, reviews, announcements, and advertisements in journals (including but not limited to Wide Angle, Nineteenth Century Theatre and Film, The Moving Image, Post Script, and Film History).

Media Services collects video recordings, including feature films on video, documentaries with significance to the study of film making; experimental films; and secondary works on film, film makers, genres, and the history of motion pictures. The Media Services librarian works with the subject librarians to coordinate the selection of interdisciplinary works related to the study of film or are in a video format.
