Following is a list of “hits” for February grouped by UNL Digital Commons series. A series may have as few as 1 or as many as 10,400 documents (i.e. the ETD Electronic Theses & Dissertations series).

A “hit” is recorded when a user accesses a document’s URL and cover page; the user may then go on and download the document itself, or not. If they do, then a “download” is recorded as well as a “hit.”

The normal ratio of hits to downloads for the open-access materials is about 2 hits for each 1 download.

For the ETD collection (where users outside UNL must pay for access to electronic dissertations), the ratio is closer to 12 hits for each download.

Series that have more content and series that have been online longer tend to have more hits than smaller and newer series.
