President's Column

Dear POD Members,

Greetings! It is almost summer and the time when many of us catch up on projects, take vacations, and generally unwind after a hectic academic year. For many POD committee members and volunteers, that means working on the responsibilities we assumed on behalf of the organization, such as our annual conference coming up in October. In this issue are various announcements from around North America, including an update on the fall conference. You will also find a call for conference sites from Larry Quinsland to which I hope you will take a moment to respond. And finally, we have the first installment of what will be a series of articles sponsored by our Diversity Commission.

I have recently returned from the International Consortium of Educational Development (ICED) Council meeting in Oxfordshire, England, where I had the privilege of representing POD. It was a good meeting, full of ideas for different kinds of national and multi-national regional networks from around the world. We are neither the biggest nor the oldest faculty development network around, and I was able to garner some good advice concerning POD's current stage of maturity, and what our next steps might be as an organization to further our mission and goals. These goals, included in POD's mission statement, are still a good guide for our future growth: To provide support and services for its members through publications, conferences, consulting and networking; to offer services and resources to others interested in faculty development; and, to fulfill a national advocacy role seeking to inform and persuade educational leaders of the value of faculty, instructional, and organizational development in institutions of higher education.

I look forward to working with you all as we advance the knowledge and practice of our profession.

Eric Kristensen
POD President

POD Conference Communiqués

deluxe room	$166.00	$116.50
one-bedroom villa	$199.00	$134.50
two-bedroom villa	$187.00	$128.50

POD Conference Registration Assistance Volunteers Needed

Registration assistance volunteers are needed to help at the registration desk throughout the 1997 POD Conference. The registration volunteers will not be doing conference registration; rather, each person will work at the registration desk for a two-hour period. They will assist by talking with people, trouble shooting, and providing general conference information. Contact Beverley Amick, Kean College of New Jersey, who is coordinating this activity, to volunteer. Beverley's e-mail address and telephone number are the following: bamick@turbo.kean.edu, 908-527-3113.

Future Conference Sites

The Long-range Conference Planning Committee would like your assistance in locating future POD conference sites. If you are aware of a potential conference location that meets the following criteria:

- *minimum 325 guest rooms

- *minimum 12 meeting rooms (capacity >40 classroom set-up)

- *comfortable "networking" areas,

please forward the information to Larry Quinsland, Center for Arts and Science, NTID at RIT, 52 Lomb Memorial Drive, Rochester, NY 14623 or LKQ9999@ritvax.edu.

Diversity Dimensions

In 1993, in response to increasing calls from our members that POD be more reflective of the diversity of underrepresented groups and institutions in its membership, the Diversity Commission was formed under the strong support and recommendation of then President, Don Wulff, University of Washington. A subcommittee of the POD Membership Committee, the eleven member Commission has as its charge to work with the POD membership, suggesting ways in which POD can increase the diversity within the organization.

In striving to meet this goal, the commission has chosen to focus on (1) networking with and recruiting faculty developers from underrepresented institutions, such as Historically Black Colleges & Universities (HBCUs) and Native American Tribal Colleges; (2) instituting faculty development internship grants to encourage POD member institutions to support and develop internship programs for individuals of color who are interested in exploring a career in faculty development; (3) continuing to encourage scholarship and dialogue on diversity issues in our publications and conference sessions; (4) empowering the membership at large to embrace these goals; and, (5) serving as a resource for POD as we think through issues related to diversity and encourage a broader involvement in the organization.

Since 1994, our networking and recruiting efforts have resulted in the participation of over fifteen faculty developers from HBCUs. Similar efforts have also resulted in the participation of over eight faculty developers from Native American Tribal Colleges. In 1995, the Commission recommended that diversity internship grants of $1,000 be awarded to the University of Michigan and the University of Southern Colorado. At the University of Michigan, for example, the grant was used to support a graduate student of color who was interested in exploring faculty and instructional development by focusing on multicultural teaching issues and observing faculty developers in action.

POD continues to be an organization that prides itself on community, collegiality, tradition, and networking, along with an abundance of rich resources that is unmatched by many organizations. As we seek to encourage, reach out and invite the fellowship of institutions and faculty developers that have not been traditionally or historically represented in our membership, we invite you to join our efforts and welcome your input. We feel that a membership that is diverse brings a breadth and depth to the organization that is not only essential, but also truly enriches the POD spirit.

Regional Association Overview

California State University Faculty Development Council

The campus directors of faculty development or teaching and learning centers in the California State University (CSU) system have established the Faculty Development Council as a forum and network for sharing ideas, providing assistance to new and continuing directors, and fostering collaboration on faculty development programs and events. The director of the CSU Institute for Teaching and Learning (ITL) is a non-voting member of the Council. The Council meets twice a year, usually with travel support from the Institute for Teaching and Learning, and in conjunction with an ITL conference for CSU faculty.

Often Council collaboration on projects involves some sub-set of the 22 CSU campuses in this large state. For example, 11 Southern California campuses have held annual one-day Symposia on University Teaching, with faculty from many disciplines and many campuses sharing results of innovations in their classrooms. Several campuses are collaborating on developing peer coaching programs. Another project has faculty from two campuses learning from a third campus how to assess the usability and learning outcomes of new media that they are developing for their courses.

Current topics of interest to the Council are supporting our faculty in enhancing teaching and learning with technology, assisting our faculty in conducting research on student learning in their courses and programs, including faculty development in campus and system strategic plans, and providing for the professional development of Council members, almost all of whom are faculty directing their campus center while continuing to teach a reduced load.

The Council members use a listserv to plan their meetings and stay in touch between meetings. At the meetings and via e-mail, Council members regularly share materials, plans, budgets, proposals, and other ideas that show what they are doing with various kinds of support. The Faculty Development Council works much like a Cal State version of POD, but the Council does not replace POD. We value the expanded opportunities, support, and models that POD provides.

POD Teaching Excellence Essay Series

The POD Teaching Excellence Essay Series was begun in 1989 and has been well received by the POD membership and beyond. We are advancing the publication and distribution schedule this year so as to accommodate institutions on the early-semester system. The distribution schedule will be the following: catalogue and invitation to subscription—early June, packet of four essays for the fall—mid-August, and spring packet—mid-December. The authors and titles for the 1997-98 series are listed below. For more information, contact the Editor, Kay Herr Gillespie, at kaygi@uga.cc.uga.edu.

Member News

- Catherine Frerichs has been appointed Director of the Center for Faculty Learning and Teaching and Professor of English at Grand Valley State University, Allendale, Michigan, effective August 1997. Prior to this appointment, Catherine served as Senior Program Officer at the Great Lakes Colleges Association.
- Mona Kreaden has been named Director of the EQUAL Commission (a presidential commission for Enhancing the Quality of Undergraduate Academic Life) at New York University, after serving as its coordinator since 1994. She is also Director of the Returning Adult Program of the Gallatin School of Individualized Study at NYU.

For You to Do

- Enjoy the summer! POD Network News will return in the fall. Please submit your news items for the September issue by August 8, 1997. Pieces should be sent to Mary Everley at everl001@gold.tc.umn.edu., or at Preparing Future Faculty, University of Minnesota, 120 Fraser Hall, Minneapolis, Minnesota 55455. (E-mail is preferred.) Examples of the types of information that are of interest are the following:
  - Send ideas for future POD conference locations
  - Submit a proposal for the ICED conference
  - News of personnel changes, new centers, etc.
  - News of books authored by POD members
  - News of conferences of interest to POD members
  - Position announcements or other opportunities for POD members
  - Requests from committees for assistance or ideas
  - Professional development programs' web home page addresses

POD Network News is published quarterly by the Professional and Organizational Development Network in Higher Education as a member service of the POD Network. Member contributions are encouraged and should be sent directly to the Editor.

SECOND INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE

“SUPPORTING
EDUCATIONAL, FACULTY & TA DEVELOPMENT
WITHIN
DEPARTMENTS AND DISCIPLINES”

in conjunction with the Professional & Organizational Development Network in Higher Education and
The Center for Teaching Effectiveness at The University of Texas at Austin

Austin, Texas U.S.A.

April 19-22, 1998

INVITATION TO SUBMIT PROPOSALS FOR
PAPERS, SEMINARS, POSTERS AND WORKSHOPS
The conference language will be English

Submission deadline -- September 30, 1997

BACKGROUND AND AIMS OF THE CONFERENCE

Much faculty development and educational development has traditionally been generic and organized centrally within institutions, while most scholarship occurs within disciplines and departments. There are currently attempts, world-wide, to integrate educational development within disciplines (University of Washington, Harvard University, The University of Texas at Austin are examples of this movement in the U.S.A.) but this involves new forms of departmental organization and development practice and new roles both for faculty developers and for faculty. This conference will share new approaches for developing educational practice within disciplines and academic departments. Educational development practice has also traditionally been national while disciplines develop internationally. This conference will encourage global networking.

CONFERENCE THEMES

- Linking central and departmental educational/faculty/TA development initiatives.
- Supporting research into teaching and learning within departments.
- Developing departmental faculty as change agents.
- Running discipline-specific short courses and workshops.
- Funding and supporting educational/faculty/TA development projects within departments.
- Supporting educational/faculty/TA development within the disciplines.
- Peer consultation within and across departments.
- Incorporating technology to facilitate educational/faculty/TA development that is discipline-specific.
- The role of students in educational/faculty/TA development.

TYPES OF SESSIONS

(Since some of these may be peculiarly North American ways of describing Conference sessions, please feel free to direct questions about which format would be most suitable for your contribution to Karron Lewis, Conference Coordinator.)

- PAPERS

Papers should summarize the range of practices within a country, describe particularly significant or innovative practices, provide conceptual overviews or report evidence of effectiveness of programs and practices. Papers will have sessions lasting 60 minutes (30 + 30 for questions and discussion) or 30 minutes (20 + 10 for questions and discussion). Papers of up to 3,000 words will be prepared in advance and circulated at the conference to allow presenters to focus on key issues and encourage discussion. Paper abstracts will be posted on the ICED Conference WWW page. Selected presenters will be invited to develop their papers for publication in a special issue of the International Journal of Academic Development.

- INTERACTIVE SEMINARS/ SYMPOSIUM/ PANEL DISCUSSIONS

These sessions will last 60 minutes and should be interactive discussions/discovery sessions. These sessions may use a variety of formats such as focus or discussion groups, case study critiques, and so forth. Panels made up of presenters from several countries providing international views on a topic are strongly encouraged. Seminar leaders are encouraged to use handouts. Selected presenters may be invited to develop papers for publication in a special issue of the International Journal of Academic Development.

- WORKSHOPS

Workshops will involve active learning and involvement of participants, for example through the demonstration of the processes used in programs for discipline-specific groups. They should be supported by handouts. Workshops will last 90 or 120 minutes.

- ROUNDTABLE DISCUSSIONS

Roundtable discussions will take place during the breakfast hour. This is a "working breakfast." Presenters should plan to lead a short discussion outlining a problem they have encountered, a program they have developed or anything they wish to get feedback on, and so forth.

- POSTER EXHIBITS ON INNOVATIVE PROGRAMS

Poster exhibits are a way to share information on innovative programs in an informal setting. Presenters who develop poster exhibits should develop visuals and handouts that will help those who visit the exhibit understand the program or study presented. The poster exhibits will be set up on 6-ft tables in a large room; one table per presenter. Conference participants will be able to visit several exhibits that are of particular interest to them during the time allotted for exhibits. Presenters with vertical displays will need to indicate their need for a "wall board" or may supply their own.
