Call for Papers for the 1992 Edition of To Improve The Academy

deadline for submission: February 1st, 1992

POD invites submissions for the 1992 edition of To Improve the Academy

To Improve the Academy is an annual publication of essays written by members and supporters of the Professional and Organizational Network in Higher Education (POD). Since its inception in 1982, To Improve the Academy has provided a forum for articles on instructional, faculty, and organizational development.

Although articles should focus on topics within these three general areas, they may address any development issues relevant to a variety of institutions, ranging widely in size, focus, funding, and programs. Approaches for articles may vary from research-based pieces to theory-based, descriptive, or reflective pieces. The authors are particularly interested in submissions that address the 1991 POD Conference theme: "Improving Higher Education: Ways of Knowing." Those who have presented ideas, information, or approaches at the 1991 conference are especially encouraged to submit manuscripts.

Please prepare manuscripts according to the guidelines set forth by The Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association. Submissions must include an abstract. Since the manuscripts will be reviewed using a blind review process, include a title page that contains the title, the author(s), and an address and phone number for the lead author. Additionally, include the title (but no names) on the top of the first page of the manuscript. Prepare your manuscript in Microsoft Word on Macintosh or PC as you will be asked to submit a disk if your article is accepted. Contact the editors for a copy of New Forum Press's "Manuscript Preparation Suggestions for Authors of To Improve the Academy."

Please submit five hard copies of your initial manuscript. The editors will provide prompt feedback on all manuscripts. Early submission will permit more time for complete feedback and any revision that may be necessary if your article is accepted for publication.
