Champourcin, Ernestina de (1905-1999)

Iker Gonzalez-Allende
University of Nebraska-Lincoln, igonzalezallende2@unl.edu

Follow this and additional works at: http://digitalcommons.unl.edu/modlangspanish

Part of the Modern Languages Commons

http://digitalcommons.unl.edu/modlangspanish/83

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Modern Languages and Literatures, Department of at DigitalCommons@University of Nebraska - Lincoln. It has been accepted for inclusion in Spanish Language and Literature by an authorized administrator of DigitalCommons@University of Nebraska - Lincoln.
World Literature in Spanish

AN ENCYCLOPEDIA

Volume I: A–F

Maureen Ihrie and Salvador A. Oropesa, Editors

ABC-CLIO
Santa Barbara, California • Denver, Colorado • Oxford, England
Champourcin, Ernestina de (1905–1999)

Arguably the most celebrated woman poet of Spain’s *Generation of 1927, Champourcin went into exile in Mexico at the conclusion of the civil war (1936–1939) with her husband, poet Juan José Doménchina. She lived there until her 1972 return to Spain.

Champourcin’s poetry evolves from the emphasis on emotions and formal experimentation to mysticism and the remembrance of her past. Her first book, En silencio (1926; In Silence), contains poems clearly influenced by *romanticism and modernism. Subsequent poetry collections, such as La voz en el viento (1931; The Voice in the Wind), follow avant-garde tendencies and present a conceptual, pure poetry that underlines the poet’s self-determination and creative liberty.

During exile, Champourcin finds in religion a solution to her existential agony. After a 16-year lapse, in poem collections like Presencia a oscuras (1952; Presence in Darkness), the poet dialogues with God and yearns for spiritual union with Him.

Primer exilio (1978; First Exile) initiates Champourcin’s last and retrospective poetry with memories of the Spanish Civil War and her trip into exile. Her final works suggest that human loneliness can be surmounted by faith in life after death.

_Iker González-Allende_

See also Civil War Literature in Spain; Poetry in Spain: 1900 to Present.

Work By:

Work About:
