This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Professional and Organizational Development Network in Higher Education at DigitalCommons@University of Nebraska - Lincoln. It has been accepted for inclusion in POD Network Conference Materials by an authorized administrator of DigitalCommons@University of Nebraska - Lincoln.
Dear Colleague:

The 1989 POD Conference is only a few weeks away, so we wanted to send you a tentative program and a list of extracurricular activities to aid you in planning for the meeting. If you are leading a session, please check the enclosed conference schedule to verify your time slot. The range of special events contains something for every taste, but since space is limited you should fill out the Special Event Reservation Form and send it to me as soon as you can. All fees will be collected at registration on October 56, so don't send any money now.

We have had an unexpectedly large number of registrants this year, and therefore room space is at a premium. If you know you have a vacant bedroom in your condominium, and you would be willing to share your accommodations, please call Art Crawley at 404-542-1355 and he will match up roommates.

Dress is (as usual) casual for the entire conference (unless you choose to dress up for the Saturday night Gala at the Jekyll Island Club). The weather on the Georgia coast the first week in October is usually very mild, with daytime temperatures in the high 70's to low 80's, falling to the mid-60's at night. A cotton sweater or light jacket should suffice to keep one comfortable in the evening. Water temperature in the ocean should still be about 70 degrees, because of the Gulf Stream.

Remember to bring brochures about your programs, copies of your newsletters and other publications, order forms, etc. for the Materials Display Area. The exchange of these materials at POD meetings has always been a great way to learn about new programs (and to avoid "re-inventing the wheel" in your own program).

Finally, don't forget to jot down the best teaching/faculty-development/instructional-development idea you have had this year to get ready for the "Bright Idea Award" competition (and for inclusion in the next "Bright Ideas" book). Newcomers will be amazed to discover that the award is a priceless heirloom that has been passed down from hand to hand by generations of Podders, not unlike the Olympic torch.

See you in Georgia!

Sincerely,

Ed Neal

CALL FOR PROPOSALS
14th Annual Conference of the Professional and Organizational Development (POD) Network
October 5-8, 1989
Jekyll Island, Georgia

The Future is Now: Challenges and Opportunities

The Fourteenth Annual POD Conference will be held at Jekyll Island, on the beautiful and historic coast of Georgia. The theme this year, The Future is Now: Challenges and Opportunities, reflects our concern with important trends in the internal and external environment of higher education. These trends present both challenges and opportunities to development professionals, and the ways we choose to respond will affect the health of higher education for years to come.

For example, the aging and imminent retirement of many faculty members hired in the "boom" period of the 1960's presents a variety of challenges (e.g. How will we replace them? - Prepare them for retirement? - Train the new cohort?) as well as several opportunities (We can exploit the talents of retired faculty to serve new functions in higher education; train new faculty before they become set in their ways; redesign courses and curricula that were developed in the 60's).

The problems of women and minorities in higher education present other challenges: How will we reduce racism and sexism on our campuses? - provide for the special educational needs of minority students? - encourage more women and minority students to choose careers in higher education? But opportunities are presented at the same time: (for example) more minorities and women in faculty positions would help fill the gap created by the retiring faculty cohort and would also provide more role models for minority and women students.

Similarly, challenges and opportunities are associated with the changing institutional climate (less money, more bureaucracy, more accountability) and with the impact of new technology on higher education (microcomputers and telecommunications). The ways we choose to deal with these challenges will determine both the nature of our profession and the shape of higher education in the future. We will organize kickoff panel discussions around each of the four areas mentioned above—Faculty and the Future, Minorities and Women, The Changing Institutional Climate, and Advances in Technology—and individual presentations will be subsumed under these general categories.

If you would like to propose a session for the conference, write to request a proposal form from:

(Note: Nonmembers registering for the conference receive a one-year introductory membership as part of their registration.)

Registration fees include six meals (no breakfast), coffee breaks, and conference materials.

ROOM RESERVATIONS
Room reservations will be handled by Villas By The Sea Resort Hotel and Conference Center. You can mail in the attached reservation form or make arrangements by telephone—be sure to mention that you are with the POD Network in Higher Education. Call toll-free: 1-800-342-6872 (GA); 1-800-841-6272 (US).

TRAVEL INFORMATION
Jekyll Island is located just off Interstate 95 near Brunswick, GA. It is about 70 miles south of Savannah, 70 miles north of Jacksonville, and 280 miles from Atlanta. If you are traveling by air, you can fly into Jacksonville or Brunswick (ground transportation for conference-goers will be available at both airports). Delta Airlines has the most convenient connections through Atlanta to Jacksonville, and has agreed to give POD special conference rates (see below). Delta also offers connections to Brunswick. If it is more convenient, you may prefer to fly to Charlotte, NC, on Piedmont Airlines. Piedmont has a commuter line, Henson Air, that flies regularly from Charlotte to Brunswick. (NOTE: Preconference workshops begin Thursday morning, Oct. 5, conference registration will begin at 2:00 pm October 5, and the opening reception starts at 6:00 that evening; the conference ends at noon on Sunday, October 8.)

DELTA DISCOUNT INFORMATION
Delta Air Lines Special Meetings Network is pleased to allow a discount of 35% off of Delta's round-trip coach fares for travel to Brunswick, GA, and 40% for travel to Jacksonville FL. Ticketing and booking requirements are:
1. Valid travel dates: October 2-11, 1989
2. Tickets must be purchased 7 days in advance
3. Changes to the originating flight must be made 7 days in advance—returns may be
4. Travel via Delta only
5. No cancellation penalty
Additionally, for travel to Jacksonville, a 5% reduction is being offered off any of Delta's published round-trip excursion prices; passengers using those rates will be required to abide by the applicable rules and penalties of the fare chosen. Call Delta, or have your travel agent call 1-800-221-1212 and ask for the Special Meetings Network (8 am to 11 pm ET). Please refer to file reference number J15099.

GROUND TRANSPORTATION

We have arranged for inexpensive bus/van transportation from Jacksonville and Brunswick by Golden Isles Touring Company. Participants are responsible for making their own reservations and paying for their own transportation. Please fill out the attached form and mail it with your payment to Golden Isles Touring Company. The trip from Jacksonville to Jekyll takes 75 minutes; the trip from Brunswick to Jekyll takes about 30 minutes. (Limousine and taxi service is available from both airports, but is very expensive.) Car rental agencies operate from both airports.

PRECONFERENCE WORKSHOPS
Thursday, October 5, 1989

Preconference workshops run simultaneously from 9:00 am until 5:00 pm on Thursday.

Workshop I: Getting Started In Faculty and Organizational Development. Cost: $35.00 (All day session)

Back by popular demand, this workshop is strongly recommended for anyone who is just getting started in Professional and Organizational Development. It will acquaint participants with the vocabulary of the field and introduce them to a number of people who will be willing to provide information and additional assistance after the workshop is over. The program begins at 9:00 am and will run until 5:00 pm, with lunch provided.

Workshop Coordinator: Karron Lewis, Center for Teaching Effectiveness, Main Building 2200, the University of Texas at Austin, Austin, TX 78712-1111, (512) 471-1488.

Workshop II: Instructional Consultation: Enhancing Professional Skills. Cost: $35.00 (All day session)

This workshop will provide opportunities for experienced instructional consultants to analyze each other's consultations and relate that analysis to the literature on feedback and consultation. Participants will bring videotapes of themselves consulting with their clients. Each consultant will show a segment of his/her videotape; the group will discuss the segment and provide feedback on technique and content. Because of the intensive nature of this workshop, enrollment is limited to six participants, all of whom must have at least one year's experience in instructional consultation. Videotapes must be 1/2 inch VHS format. Participants are asked to contact either of the workshop coordinators as soon as possible after registration for further details. Lunch provided.

Workshop Coordinators: Kathleen T. Brinko, Faculty Development and Instructional Services, Appalachian State University, Boone, NC 28608, (704) 262-3040. David G. Taylor-Way, Director of Instructional Support, B-41 Day Hall, Cornell University, Ithaca, NY 14851, (607) 255-3493.
Workshop III: Working With Faculty on Course and Curriculum Design. Cost: $20.00 (Half day session)

This practical workshop will, following a successful model for course, curriculum, and program design, describe the role of the developer in the process of design, implementation, and evaluation. Tools and techniques will be introduced through active participation. The politics of implementation, successful change, the skills needed to be an effective developer, and how to increase impact with limited resources will also be discussed. Participants will receive a copy of Bob Diamond's Designing and Improving Courses and Curricula in Higher Education, Jossey-Bass, 1989. The program begins at 1:30 pm and concludes at 5:00 pm.

Workshop Coordinator: Bob Diamond, Assistant Vice-Chancellor, Syracuse University, NY 13244-2320, (315)443-4571.

Workshop IV: Retiring With Joy. Cost $20.00 (Half-day session)

Ready to retire? Ever think you may be ready? Then this workshop is for you. The session will consist of two parts: a presentation of statistics and trends pertaining to retirement in higher education (and projections for the next several years), and a set of experiential exercises for persons planning/studying imminent retirement. The goal is to view retirement as the next, joyful "phase" of life. The program begins at 9:00 am and ends at noon.

Workshop Coordinator: Professor Ed Harrill, Dept. of Human Development and Psychological Counseling, Appalachian State University, Boone, NC 28608, (704)262-6048.

Please use this form to make arrangements for ground transportation. The round-trip costs are $18.00 for the Brunswick-Jekyll route; $32.00 for the Jacksonville-Jekyll route. Reservations must be received by September 15, 1989.

(Note: Special arrangements will be made for POD members when eight or more are arriving or leaving together at times other than those on the schedule above.)
A recent PBS television series, Ethics in America, dealt with ethical issues in many fields: business, government, law, journalism, the military, and medicine. Curiously, education -- a basic American institution -- was not included. Yet before we criticize the design of the series, let us ask how often educators concern themselves with matters of ethics.

Have we educators carefully studied the ethical issues in teaching? Do we understand them? What is ethical teaching? Can it sometimes be in conflict with academic freedom? Have we consciously developed codes of ethical behavior? Do we conduct ourselves so as to avoid ethical transgressions? Have we defined procedures for resolving ethical problems? Do we communicate values to our students? Should we? How? What roles can faculty developers play in facing these questions?

Several members of the POD Network think these are important concerns. We have committed ourselves to exploring such matters further in a modified pre-conference workshop. If you are interested in the subject, are tolerant of an open agenda and a relatively unstructured format, and are willing to devote a large part of a 24-hour period to it, we invite you to join us.

We will engage the topic and follow it wherever it leads us. There will be material to read in advance. Each participant will be asked to complete a short written assignment before the workshop begins. We will first meet at 500P on Wednesday, October 4 -- note that this is earlier than other pre-conference workshops. We will reconvene at 800P on Thursday and end at 400P that afternoon. Our specific activity, once we have convened, will be determined in large part through consensus of the participants. We may at times use subgroups, task forces, or individually, as well as in a single group.

We anticipate that some of our attention will focus on clearer definition and understanding of the questions and issues. We expect that the workshop will be a personal growth experience for participants. And we hope that the dialogue will lead to new efforts and new actions -- not just by individuals but perhaps also by institutions and organizations.

The workshop will be limited to 30 persons. Those enrolling will be expected to attend throughout the scheduled time, beginning on Wednesday afternoon. The standard workshop fee of $35 will cover lunch on Thursday and preparation and distribution of advance materials. There will be an additional modest cost for Wednesday dinner. Registration for the workshop must be made by September 1, 1989, in order for necessary advance activity to be accomplished.

POD Network members who have agreed to participate, to be responsible for advance planning, and to help facilitate the process of the dialogue include Linc. Fisch (coordinator), Mel Gray, Bobbi Helling, Lee Humphreys, Barbara Millis, Bob Pierleoni, Ron Smith, Ellen Stevens, Diane vom Saal, Neil Wylie, and Ken Zahorski.

Proposal Guidelines

The POD Network in Higher Education is a professional association of people who are committed to improving higher education. POD’s members include faculty, department chairs, deans, chief academic officers, student services personnel, faculty and instructional development center staff, and educational consultants from the United States, Canada, Europe, and the Far East. POD members share the belief that institutions are strengthened when their members find opportunities for personal and professional growth, for innovation and experimentation, for change and renewal. If you are involved in these types of activities and would like to share your experiences/ideas/research in this area, we invite you to submit a proposal for a conference session.

Conference Themes

We have selected four minor themes that fall under the main conference theme: The Future is Now: Challenges and Opportunities. Each of the minor themes is broad enough to encompass a wide variety of session topics, and we have suggested a few below. Read through these descriptions to find the category under which your topic naturally falls. If your session idea does not seem to fit any of them, it can be placed in the off-theme category.

Minorities and Women
This theme encompasses many important questions. For example, to whom can younger minority and women faculty turn for mentoring in the 1990’s, and how can we help them win positions and achieve tenure? What can we do to address the special educational needs of minority students? With so few minorities and women in faculty positions to act as role models, how can we encourage minorities and women to pursue academic careers?

Sessions on this theme might fit the conference tracks OD, AD, & AC (see below for explanation of codes).

Faculty and the Future
Many faculty members hired in the 1960’s are nearing retirement age; at the same time, experts are predicting a shortage of faculty in the 1990’s. How can we respond to the needs of retiring faculty? In what ways can we use retired faculty as resources for our programs (can they train TA’s or work as consultants in teaching centers?). Given the widespread emphasis on research productivity, how will we convince new faculty members of the importance of teaching?

Possible conference tracks: AC, TAD, OD, & ID.
The Changing Institutional Climate

Shrinking state and federal budgets will mean having to do more with even less in the future. At the same time, the drive for accountability presents new challenges for our institutions. How can we prepare for possible budget cost? How can smaller institutions compete successfully for faculty and students? Research universities earn their reputations on the research "output" of their faculties; how can we reconcile this need with the need to meet new accountability standards?
Possible conference tracks: AC, OD, & TD.

Off-Theme Category

If you have an idea for a session that does not fit any of the themes above, you can still submit a proposal. Any worthwhile proposal will be considered for the program.

General Information

One of the goals of a POD conference is to provide model sessions using the best available methods and techniques to communicate ideas, theories and practices. Thus, session presenters should apply what they know about teaching and learning to the methods they use in their presentations. Proposal reviewers will look for sessions which are exciting, appropriate, engaging and well designed. Preference will be given to proposals which do more than merely inform, describe or report on a project or strategy. POD members look forward to sessions which are practical and interactive, ones which help them develop a new skill or approach through active participation.

(If you have a paper you would like to share, bring it to be displayed in the materials center. You may attach a sign-up sheet so people can arrange a time to discuss it with you.)

You are encouraged to bring a faculty member or administrator with you to present sessions which they share their perspectives on the conference theme.

The information which follows is furnished to assist you in planning your proposal and completing the attached proposal form.

Please return your proposal by May 15 to:

(Also, remember to fill out your address on the enclosed postcard so we can notify you when we receive the proposal.)

Tracks for Concurrent Sessions

Concurrent sessions will last either 45 minutes or 90 minutes and should be designed to fit into one of the tracks described below. Track acronyms will be used to designate sessions in the conference program.

AC: Administrative Concerns
The concerns which administrators have about implementing new ideas in the organization can be shared in these sessions.

AD: Administrator Development
Included in this track are programs currently in use to enhance administrators’ leadership skills. Presenters might focus on team building, training new department chairs and similar topics.

ID: Instructional Development
Innovations in instructional development that faculty/instructional developers may take home to use with faculty on their campuses are addressed in sessions in this track.

OD: Organizational Development
Programs or techniques that faculty development personnel may use to help develop the institution as a whole are reviewed in these sessions.

TAD: Teaching Assistant Development
Programs that assist TA’s in developing skills in teaching, measurement and evaluation, and professional development are increasing in number. Descriptions of programs and techniques for implementing them, as well as a demonstration of workshops used with TA’s, are appropriate for this track.

PD: Personal Development
Successful techniques for development of personal skills to help others weave together their personal and professional lives are included in this track. A variety of topics could be addressed (i.e., time management, stress management).

ND: New Developers
People who are new to professional/instructional/organizational development benefit from the experience of others. This is an opportunity for “old hands” to share some of the things they have learned over the years with new faculty developers.

OH: Old Hands
Experienced faculty developers need revitalization and new ideas. In these sessions presenters provide a new perspectives on old information, offer ideas for successful problem-solving activities, and give suggestions for renewal activities.

TC: Technology in Development
Encouraging faculty members to utilize instructional technology can be tricky. Sessions that show how faculty members have been introduced to the wonders of technology are a great boon to those of us trying to help such individuals at our own institutions.

TT: Teaching Techniques
This is an opportunity for faculty members to share innovative techniques they are using in their classes. These ideas then can be adopted by other faculty members as well as taken home by developers to stimulate faculty clients at their own institutions.

IS: Issues
Revitalize and reeducate your faculty by addressing issues of vital importance to them and their students. Gender equity in the classroom, multiculturalism, ethics, the status and professionalism of teaching, research on teaching, and accountability and evaluation are topics for these sessions.

Level of Audience Experience and Knowledge

Sessions should be designed for one of the following audiences:

- little or no previous knowledge of the subject matter
- at least a basic knowledge and some experience
- a working knowledge of the field and considerable experience

Conference Schedule

This year’s conference begins with a cocktail party and a Welcome to Jekyll Island and POD on Thursday evening, October 5, and ends at lunch on Sunday, October 8. It is suggested that participants plan to arrive by early afternoon on Thursday, allowing time to get settled and begin to get to know the island.

Expenses

As a nonprofit educational association, POD does not provide honoraria for session presenters at its national conference. Presenters cover all of their own expenses.
