12th Biennial Symposium ~ Lincoln, Nebraska ~ October 6 - 9, 2010

The Textile Society of America presents its Biennial Symposium, the flagship event, held in the fall of even-numbered years.

The symposium, usually hosted by a North American university or museum, is a three-day event that unites scholars, artists, and lovers of textiles from all over the world.

Changing symposium locations gives participants specially focused experiences in uniquely rich regional areas throughout North America.

In addition to presentations by featured speakers, juried papers, group discussions, video programs, a textile marketplace, and a book fair, the symposium offers an opportunity to participate in local study tours, excursions to exhibitions, visits to private collections, and workshops given by experts in specific textile-related fields.

This year the Textile Society of America is proud to present Textiles and Settlement: From Plains Space to Cyber Space in Lincoln, Nebraska.

Welcome from the President

As President of TSA, I am delighted to welcome you to the 12th Biennial Symposium of the Textile Society of America. This gathering brings together an impressive number of scholars, artists, museum and gallery professionals, educators, and textile enthusiasts from around the world.

As an organization, TSA selects Symposium venues which through their unique site specific offerings broaden our understanding of diverse museum collections and institutions in different geographic settings, encouraging new and old members to discover what yet another location holds of serious interest to specialists. Each gathering has its own flavor and distinct sense of place. For this event in Lincoln, Nebraska, our deep appreciation goes to the inspired and dedicated leadership of Wendy Weiss and Diane Vigna, co-chairs of Symposium 2010, and to the careful, collaborative planning by the local steering committee. Many people have worked so hard to make available Nebraska's offerings to those of us who have traveled great or small distances to be here, focused on the theme, Textiles and Settlement: From Plains Space to Cyber Space. This Symposium has scheduled a generous and professional program of organized sessions, panels and discussions, the keynote address and plenary presentations, site seminars, tours, workshops, and the many excellent exhibitions. I look forward to seeing you at the International Textile Marketplace, the Book Fair, at the opening reception, the gallery hop, and at the Banquet and Awards Ceremony.

This is a time when we as colleagues can meet new colleagues, enjoy networking with others in the field and connect across our diverse interests, learning from each other. Thank you for coming to this Symposium and for your interest and support of TSA. You are an important part of this international organization.

Pat Hickman, President of TSA, 2008-2010

Welcome from the Symposium Committee Chairs

A dedicated steering committee of local planners and international TSA board members have been working since August 2008 to insure that the wealth of resources located in this central region of the United States will be accessible to you. Our pre and post symposium tours and workshops have been planned for you to arrive on Tuesday and depart on Monday so you can take advantage of at least one tour and one workshop.

In Omaha, plan to see the exhibitions mounted at the University Nebraska-Omaha Weber Fine Arts Building Gallery and travel downtown to the historic Old Market district to visit the Hot Shops 1301 Gallery, Bemis Center for Art and the Jun Kaneko space. We have included these exhibitions in the pre-symposium art tour, as well as an extraordinary private collection in Lincoln. In the textile conservation tour you have an opportunity to see some of the breath taking Nebraska landscape as you travel to DeSoto Bend National Wildlife Refuge to see the Steamboat Bertrand exhibition.

Following the symposium, participate in a guided tour of the Winnebago and Omaha communities. Our Saturday plenary session speaker, Judi M. gaiashkibos, has graciously agreed to journey with you for this tour. We are also offering four hands-on workshops, all held on the University of Nebraska-Lincoln campus. Explore natural dyes with Dominique Cardon and Elena Phipps; digital Jacquard design with Julie Holyoke of Lisio in Florence; felt making with Janice Arnold and Christine Martens; and ralli quilt practice with Tricia Stoddard.

In partnership with the Sheldon Museum of Art, Saturday night we are offering a free screening of The Desert of Forbidden Art, an exciting new documentary about the rescue of 40,000 artworks sheltered at a remote desert museum in Uzbekistan narrated by Ben Kingsley and Sally Field. Sunday offers a full day of post-symposium activities.

Use our Facebook page to help investigate restaurants and links to maps we have designed to help you get acquainted with Lincoln destinations.

We welcome you to Lincoln and to the Textile Society America's 12th Biennial Symposium.

Wendy Weiss and Diane Vigna, co-chairs

8:45 - 5:30 Tour 1: Conserving Textiles on the Plains

Cost per person: $75

Tour Leader: Janet Price

Janet Price, Collections Manager at the International Quilt Study Center. She planned, coordinated and oversaw the transfer of the entire IQSC collection when it moved to its new home in 2008. She holds an MA in Textile History/Quilt Studies from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln

Tour Description: An informative day devoted to textile conservation will begin with a behind-the-scenes tour of the care and conservation work room of the International Quilt Study Center where we will discover how the world's largest publicly owned quilt collection is cared for and stored in its new, state-of-the-art facility.

The tour will proceed to Omaha, internationally known for its steak houses, for lunch at Gorat's, a favorite eatery of billionaire Warren Buffet. (Lunch is not included in the tour, all participants may order individually. Cost estimate: less than $20)

After lunch we will visit the Gerald Ford Conservation Center which houses state-of-the-art technical laboratories for the examination, evaluation, and conservation treatment of ceramics, glass, metals, ethnographic materials, archeological materials, wooden artifacts, works of art on paper, photographs, documents, archival materials, books, paintings, and textiles. A library of reference works on conservation and collections care, a microscopy laboratory, secured storage and receiving areas, an x-radiography area, an air abrasive room, and a workroom support the conservation activities. Services the Center provides include consultation, assessment of collection management needs, assessment of conservation treatment needs, education and training, workshops, and conservation treatment of collection materials for historical, cultural, educational, private, and corporate clients in the region.

For the final stop we will travel into Iowa to the DeSoto Bend Wildlife Refuge and the Steamboat Bertrand exhibit. Loaded with merchandise and supplies, the Bertrand was bound for the Montana Gold Fields when it sank in the Missouri River in 1865. The boat and its contents, mostly new and unused items destined to be sold in Montana, remained submerged for over 100 years. We will learn about how over 200,000 artifacts were conserved and how they are cared for today.

8:45 - 5:30 Tour 2: Nebraska's Colorful History

Cost per person: $75

Tour Leader: Nancy Eberle

Nancy Eberle is a Special Projects consultant for the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension division. Previously, she served as Central Area Director for US Congressman, Tom Osborne. Nancy has conducted many tours of Nebraska focusing on the state's agricultural heritage. A lifelong resident of Nebraska, she and her husband live and farm near Bradshaw.

Tour Description: The first stop on this tour will be the Nebraska History Museum in Lincoln where a docent-guided tour will teach us about the history of the state of Nebraska and the Great Plains. Nancy Eberle will give us insights into Nebraska's agricultural economy as we journey into rural Nebraska during harvest season. We will travel to the city of Beatrice, where we will have a buffet lunch at one of Nebraska's favorite restaurants, Valentino's. During the meal, we will listen to a representative of the Homestead National Monument discuss the historic site. We will then visit the Monument Heritage Center for a self-guided tour of the interactive exhibits about the Homestead Act of 1862 and the settling of the American West. We'll also visit the center's gift shop.

Last, we will visit Rock Creek Station, a former Pony Express station and stop on the Oregon Trail. Early Nebraskan entrepreneur, David McCanless, owned Rock Creek Station and built a toll bridge across Rock Creek. Wagons following the Oregon Trail were able to cross the bridge for a fee of ten to fifty cents. McCanless and members of his family met a grizzly end, gunned down by James Butler Hickok (later known as Wild Bill Hickok).

8:00 - 5:30

Tour 3: Incomparable Art/Exceptional Spaces

Cost per person: $75

Tour Leaders: Dr. Robert Hillestad and Mary Zicafoose

Dr. Robert Hillestad, Professor Emeritus of Textiles, Clothing & Design at the University of Nebraska–Lincoln, is a studio artist and design educator. With fibers and fabric he creates garments and accessories, as well as wall pieces and sculpture for commercial and residential interiors. His work has been shown in more than 150 juried and invitational exhibitions in the United States and abroad and is included in many corporate, private, and museum collections.

Mary Zicafoose's tapestries and rugs span the globe from museums and corporations to the collections of United States Embassies on three continents. She is internationally recognized for her contemporary adaptation of the weft-face ikat process applied to tapestry. Co-director of the American Tapestry Alliance, and board member of RugMark/GoodWeave USA, Mary operates a one-woman weaving studio from her home in Omaha.

Tour Description: Join internationally known Nebraska fiber artists, Robert Hillestad and Mary Zicafoose, for tours of two Omaha galleries featuring fiber art exhibitions curated by Jay Rich and planned especially for the TSA Symposium. At Hot Shops, see Textiles, Glass, Clay, Wood and Metal: The Interface, and at the University of Nebraska–Omaha Gallery see Carved Board Clamp Resist Dyeing: Historical Perspective and Contemporary Application. Also featured at the UNO Gallery is the exhibition Sequenced Fibers: Books of Handmade Paper curated by Professor Bonnie O'Connell. We will have a picnic lunch, weather permitting, in the Heartland of America Park.

Next we will visit the studio and gallery of world-renowned ceramic artist Jun Kaneko, then see the legendary annual fundraising auction show at the Bemis Center for Contemporary Arts and tour the internationally acclaimed Bemis art residency program. Kaneko and the Bemis are both located in Omaha's historic Old Market district near the Missouri River. Before leaving Omaha, we will visit the Anderson-O'Brien Gallery for a trunk show featuring high craft wearable and textile art for the wall.

A highlight of this tour will be the final stop in Lincoln at the home of art collectors, Robert and Karen Duncan. The Duncan home, completed in 2002, was designed by London-based, Greek architect, Demetri Porphyrios. Duncan and curatorial assistant, Anne Pagel, will give us a guided tour of the collection, considered one of the top 100 in the nation, and the 35-acre sculpture garden. The Duncan collection is diverse and includes textile art, with notable Japanese and contemporary basket collections. The couple relishes opportunities to meet artists whose works they own to learn more about their motivations and creative processes. Robert Duncan is Chairman Emeritus of Duncan Aviation, one of the world's largest business aviation sales and service organizations. He continues to be an active pilot. Both Robert and Karen are active advocates for the arts.

Pre-Symposium Workshops

Pre-registration required; fee charged. Bus transportation provided, departing from hotel; look for signs on the first floor to find the designated boarding area for your tour destination.

8:30-4:30

Workshop 1: Investigation of Natural Dyes: Reds and Purples

Teachers: Dominique Cardon and Elena Phipps

Place: Rm. 21, Home Economics Bldg., University of Nebraska, East Campus

Workshop fee: $125

Materials fee: Fee is waived due to the generosity of The Reed Foundation

Maximum students: 18 full registrants plus two scholarships

Workshop Description: Explore the many dyestuffs that can be used to create colors, particularly reds and purples, and methods to modify and adjust shades and hues in the dyeing process. Participants will get hands-on experience in methods of use of some more commonly known dyestuffs—madder and cochineal among others—as well as some lesser known with more complex dyeing recipes, such as safflower and orchil. Historical perspectives on working with natural dyes, using mordants, dyebath modifiers and a number of extraction methods will also be emphasized. The production of red and purple colors used historically will be discussed with a scientific as well as a craft approach. Each participant will create a portfolio of reference samples using laboratory, experimentally oriented dyeing. This workshop is intended for both the art historian/museum curators and conservators who can gain first-hand experience in the production of color with natural dyes that can help them understand ancient and historic textiles, as well as the artists/craftspeople and can expand their understanding of processes to create a broad range of dyed colors.

No previous experience is necessary. The teachers will supply a list of reading materials that participants can familiarize themselves with prior to the workshop.

Teachers:

Dominique Cardon is a Senior Scientific Researcher at the Centre National de la Recherche Scientifique in Lyons, France, who researches the history and archaeology of textile production and dyeing. She is the author of several books on dyes, including her recent book: Natural Dyes – Sources, Tradition, Technology and Science (Archetype Publications, London, 2007), which is a comprehensive work that is the standard for the field. She has been the scientific director of several International Symposia/Workshops on Natural Dyes in India and Korea, for which she was awarded the UNESCO Medal, Thinking and Building Peace.

Elena Phipps earned a PhD in Pre-Columbian art from Columbia University and was a museum conservator at the Metropolitan Museum of Art for over thirty years. Her interests focus on the history of textile materials, techniques, and dyes in relation to cultural perspectives. In 2004 she was co-curator of an exhibition and co-author of the catalogue, The Colonial Andes: Tapestries and Silverwork 1430-1830 at the MMA, and was awarded both the Alfred Barr Jr. Award for best exhibition catalogue 2004-2005 from the College Art Association, and the Mitchell Prize, in 2006. She has authored a number of publications on colors and dyes from the Andes, including her recent book, Cochineal Red: The Art History of a Color (Yale University Press and Metropolitan Museum, 2010).

9:00-4:30

Workshop 2: Jacquard: A Loom of Opportunity

Teacher: Julie Holyoke

Place: New Media Center Computer Lab, Architecture Hall,
University of Nebraska, City Campus

Workshop fee: $125, pre-registration required

One Teitelbaum Family Support award

Maximum students: 15

Workshop Description: This Jacquard design workshop for educators, artists, and designers will be a fun and stimulating day during which many weave and design ideas for figured textiles will be presented and the medium's potential explored. Using Jacquard design software, participants will follow a series of exercises on how to create, modify, and evaluate weave structures and graphics for visual and textural effect. Samples illustrating a range of Jacquard textile types and graphic and weave solutions will be examined. Participants will learn how to construct custom weaves, how to use contrasts in scale, pattern, and weaves to create depth, rhythm, and visual interest. Criteria will be given for evaluating technical correctness of chosen weaves.

Teacher:

Julie Holyoke is a textile designer for handloom and industrial production. She teaches CAD textile design at the Fondazione Arte della Seta Lisio and other educational institutions in Florence, Italy and abroad.

Site Seminar 5: Nebraska Capitol Building *

Robert Ripley, Office of the Capitol Commission, will guide this seminar and tour of the Nebraska State Capitol, which is listed on the National Register of Historic Places and is a Registered National Historic Landmark. Bertram Goodhue, architect, had a vision of a capitol in which art and architecture were thoroughly integrated. While the spectacular mosaic tiled floors and ceilings of Nebraska's Capitol take center stage, the textiles add richness and warmth to the grand spaces. The staff specialists have worked to preserve and when necessary replicate the original fabric of the Capitol in an attempt to maintain its historical integrity. The tour will showcase the art and symbolism of the Capitol highlighting original tapestries, wall hangings, and carpets still in service, and include a visit to the archive and furniture shop.

Capitol Rotunda. 1445 K Street.

Site Seminar 6: Nebraska History Museum *

International Quilt Study Center & Museum Exhibition Assistant, Tina Koeppel and Curator of Research at the Stuhr Museum, Jessica Waite, will lead a seminar on re-housing Native American artifacts. Koeppel and Waite worked on a federal Saving America's Treasures project at the Museum in 2007 and 2008. The grant funds allowed for the conservation, proper re-housing and cataloging of over 2,500 Plains Native American artifacts. Learn about basic stabilization techniques and re-housing methods developed and utilized for fragile ethnographic items such as headdresses, dolls, cradleboard covers, moccasins, trade blankets and ceremonial clothing. Koeppel and Waite will share instructions for replicating the same type of mounts in other collections.

View the Nebraska History Museum's permanent exhibit entitled: The First Nebraskans which interprets 10,000 years of American Indian life on the Plains, showcasing housing, food-ways, clothing, and social customs of the tribes of Nebraska.

Willa Cather: A Matter of Appearances, curated by Tina Koeppel, will also be on view.

8:30-6:30 Tour 4: Native Americans of the Winnebago and Omaha Tribes

Cost per person: $95

Tour Leader: Judi M. gaiashkibos

Judi M. gaiashkibos has served as the Executive Director of the Nebraska Commission on Indian Affairs since 1995. She is an enrolled member of the Ponca Tribe of Nebraska. In 2006, she was elected President of the Governor's Interstate Indian Council (GIIC), a national organization with the mission of improving and promoting cooperation between state and tribal governments.

Tour Description: Join Saturday's plenary speaker, Judi gaiashkibos, on a tour to visit northeastern Nebraska's Native People, the Winnebago and Omaha tribes. Traveling two hours to the north, we will visit Winnebago, Nebraska, home of the Winnebago tribe. There we will visit the downtown hub, including the All Natives store which sells items ranging from traditional Native American goods, to modern consumer products made by tribally owned businesses, to Native-themed objects. AllNative.com provides jobs for local employees, and for Native American artisans across the country. A walk around the corner will bring us to Woodland Trails Art Gallery, a consignment gallery for tribal artists.

Outside the gallery is a circle of beautiful native statues made by local artists. Time permitting, we will have a brief tour of the Tribal Museum.

After a lunch of authentic Indian tacos, we will travel to Walthill, a town on the reservation, where we will visit the Dr. Susan LaFlesche Picotte Hospital, which was designed by the first Native America Doctor, and will also view Dr. LaFlesche Picotte's home.

We will continue on to Macy, home of the Omaha reservation, to visit the school language center, which is designed like a traditional Omaha earthlodge. We will drive by the Pow Wow grounds and visit Lisa Drum and her daughters to see pow wow regalia (featured in the Native Daughter video). Finally, we will travel to the beautiful Black Bird Bend to see where Lewis and Clark crossed the Missouri River.

Post-Symposium Workshops

Buses depart from The Cornhusker Marriott; pre-registration required; fee charged.

8:30-3:30

Ralli Quilts: Treasures from Pakistan and India

Teacher: Patricia Stoddard

Place: International Quilt Study Center and Museum,
Campbell/Hodder Seminar Room, 1st floor

Workshop fee: $125

Materials fee: $10 payable to teacher at time of class.

Materials include fabric, mirrors, threads, shells, tassels...

Supplies: Bring small sewing scissors.

Maximum students: 20

Workshop Description: This workshop will give a comprehensive introduction to the tradition of ralli quilts in south Asia. These quilts have thousands of years of historical connections that will be explored. Rallis are still made and used by millions of people in the Indus region. Workshop participants will be able to examine samples of rallis from the IQSC Museum collection including the three styles: patchwork, appliqué and embroidery. Design and production practices will be studied. Embellishments such as small mirrors, beads, tassels and shells will be examined and discussed. Participants will create a sampler of a selection of ralli techniques and gain a strong working knowledge of rallis and be able to identify the major regional styles. This workshop is designed for anyone wanting to learn more about this tradition.

Teacher: Patricia Stoddard, PhD, author and former Assistant Professor at Brigham Young University, has also taught, researched, and done humanitarian work in Asia, Africa, and Central and South America. She lived in Pakistan between 1996-1998. Since that time she has focused her research on the study and documentation of the ralli quilts of Pakistan and India. She is the author of Ralli Quilts: Traditional Textiles from Pakistan and India (2003). She has lectured extensively about rallis to many groups, both nationally and internationally, and has also assisted museums with consulting, collections, and exhibitions.

8:00-1:00

Feltmaking

Teachers: Janice Arnold and Chris Martens

Place: Rm. 21, Home Economics Bldg., University of Nebraska, East Campus

Workshop fee: $85

Materials fee: $25 payable to teacher at time of class.

Maximum students: 20

Workshop Description: The workshop leaders will address the history and techniques of the traditional feltmaking process through discussion and images based on their research and travels. Participants will complete a felt sampler that treats both the simplicity and complexity of felt, while gaining an insight into Central Asian felt processes. Janice will also demonstrate a variety of techniques she has used in her experimental felt installations. This workshop is intended for beginners and those interested in a deeper understanding of the rich traditions surrounding the world of felt. Wear clothes that may get wet.

Teachers: Janice Arnold's pursuit of innovative felting techniques brings this ancient art form into the present. Kyrgyz and Mongolian feltmakers and their traditions have profoundly influenced her work, which ranges from intricately executed small-scale pieces to elaborate, site-specific art installations.

Chris Martens is both a visual artist and researcher of Central Asian and Turkish textiles. In 2009 she was awarded an International Quilt Study Center research award to study Central Asian Quilts. She conducted textile research in Turkmenistan, Kyrgyzstan, and Uzbekistan as Fulbright Scholar in 2007-2008 and with Asian Cultural Council funding she created a video on traditional feltmaking in Mongolia.

Both are presenters in the session, Textile Traditions of Central Asia and Reverberations Abroad.
