Information Technology Services

Information Technology Services (ITS) offers a broad range of services designed to meet the computing, communications, and networking needs of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln (UNL) faculty, staff and students. ITS provides:

- products and services for the coordination of voice, video and data technologies;
- support for the integration of multimedia into the curriculum; and
- a single information technology support group for UNL — coordinating and supporting the needs of Teaching, Research, Outreach, and Administration.

ITS was formed in 1995 and was first headed by Kent Hendrickson, Associate Vice-Chancellor, until February 2008. It is currently headed by Mark Askren, Chief Information Officer.

Services

The following is a partial list of services maintained and supported by ITS. For a more complete list of services for network and telephone connections; research computing; user support and training; hardware and software purchases; etc. please see the faculty or Students resources pages.

- MyRed: databases providing students online access to information regarding admissions, registration, records, financial aid, and their accounts.
- MyUNL \(Blackboard\): serves as the Academic Portal for the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. This service is funded by the UNL Student Technology Fee. (NOTE: link opens in new window)
- Office 365: provides UNL's primary e-mail service and a collaborative groupware experience.
- Internet2: UNL is a founding member of the University Corporation for Advanced Internet Development (UCAID) which is responsible for Internet2. UNL is also a part of the Internet2's K20 Initiative which allows all educational institutions in Nebraska to utilize the benefits of Internet2.
