Prepping for Outlook 365 Email Migration

As we all know, Outlook 365 is coming, and Lotus Notes' days are numbered! As a department, there are a few things we need to do to get ready for the transition.

First, go through your email and clear anything out that you don't need. The fewer things that need to be migrated, the better things will go. Secondly, make sure your archives are up-to-date.

Finally, take care of attachments, particularly large ones (Large attachments will cause an error in the process that doesn't show up until the end, and then you have to start over again). Save the attachments locally (or to a network share), then delete the attachment from the email.

There are also a few things that I will need to do as the admin. I will be working on converting everyone's login IDs from the 'haa' IDs to the preferred UNL-AD login IDs. The reason for this is that O365 uses a unified login scheme, and consolidating all your network credentials under one ID will make things work much smoother, as you won't have to have multiple login IDs for every system at that point. This process will take some work both on the server as well as on each PC, to make certain that you will still have all your customizations, shortcuts, and program settings. The work on the server side will ensure that you retain all your current permissions.

The conversion process itself isn't overly complicated, but it does take some time. When it comes time to finally do the migration from Notes on your computer, we will have a small team helping to get everyone done.

Please let me know if you have questions or concerns about the process.

Plant Breeding and Genetics Seminar Set

Plant Breeding and genetics graduate students are organizing a UNL Plant Breeding and Genetics Symposium on Tuesday, April 3 in the Nebraska East Union. The symposium will run from 8 a.m.–5 p.m.

The symposium will include a speaker from the Agronomy & Horticulture Department, Dr. Stephen Baenziger, and a speaker from Pioneer Hi-Bred, Dr. David Habier. Additional symposium speakers include Dr. Jean-Luc Jannink from the USDA-ARS at Cornell University, Dr. Jode Edwards from the USDA-ARS at Iowa State University, and Dr. Michael Gore from the USDA-ARS in Arizona.

Sponsors of the symposium are Pioneer Hi-Bred and the UNL Agronomy and Horticulture Department. The symposium is free to attend, but registration is required through the symposium website. For more information and to register, visit the UNL Plant Breeding and Genetics Symposium website at <http://passel.unl.edu/communities/unlpbsymposium>.

Thanks to all who helped with Green Expo

On behalf of the Nebraska Turf Association (NTA) and the Nebraska Nursery and Landscape Association (NNLA), we'd like to thank everyone who attended and/or helped with the 2012 Nebraska Green Expo on Jan. 23–25, at the Mid-America Center in Council Bluffs.

Highlights of the Expo included:

- More than 800 professionals registered for workshops and educational sessions covering all areas of turf, business, landscape, nursery, parks, and recreation industries.
- The tradeshow included more than 70 exhibitors displaying products for all sectors of the green industry.
- The ballroom was packed for the keynote speech, Dave Cabela's "The Cabela's story: A handful of flies, a passion for the outdoors, and a belief that the combination of hard work and freedom makes anything possible."
- Ross Vandergrind of Van Diest Supply was awarded the 2012 Presidential Award by the NTA for his efforts over the years with the Expo tradeshow, NTA golf fundraisers and much more.
- The Backyard Farmer TV show on NET was awarded the Golden Leaf Award by the NNLA for significant and sustained contribution to the nursery industry.
- Eight students were awarded scholarships from the NTA, NNLA, Omaha Grounds Managers Association (OGMA), and others.

Thanks again for everyone's help.

Information For and About Graduate Students Safa is Awarded Ogle Fellowship

Congratulations to Babak Safa, Ph.D. student advised by Dr. Tim Arkebauer. He was awarded the J.J. and Eleanor Ogle Fellowship which is awarded by the College of Agriculture and Natural Resources (CASNR).

Students Should Submit Annual Progress Reports

All Ph.D. and M.S. students are asked to turn in their progress reports to Marlene Busse, 279 PLSH, mbusse@unl.edu by March 30, 2012. The progress report and instructions are available at <http://agronomy.unl.edu/graduate1>.

Funds Available for Seed-Science Projects

The Nebraska Crop Improvement Association (NCIA) has a grant fund for investigations and promotion of Nebraska seed science-related projects.

Grant proposals will be accepted for projects which cover a one-to-three-year period. However, funding will only be approved on an annual basis (April 15). Grant funding has a maximum amount of $3,000 per year.

Funding of grant proposals is a function of the NCIA Board of Directors. Guidelines are available from the NCIA office. Grant requests must be submitted by March 1 to the Nebraska Crop Improvement Association, 267 Plant Sciences Hall, PO Box 830911, Lincoln, NE 68583-0911, or call 402-472-1444.

Short Course Set June 26–28

Registration is open for the 2012 North American Invasive Plant Ecology and Management Short Course (NAIPSC). The short course will be held June 26–28 at the West Central Research and Extension Center (WCREC) in North Platte. New for 2012 is a water-use session specifically on invasive plant species. CEUs and graduate student credit are available. To register, visit the website at: <http://ipscourse.unl.edu>.
