PREFACE.

This volume of the AMERICAN BIBLIOGRAPHY is a record of first things in the literary history of the United States of America. It chronicles the birth of a National literature; the beginnings of National life in the Colonies and Provinces of Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Maryland and Rhode Island, in the chronological order in which printing was introduced in those States. It treats of much that has been forgotten; of a period all too little studied in the light of its printed records, and is an earnest endeavor to present in a fitting and enduring manner a faithful record of the literary activities of the true Founders of the American Republic, and to inspire in their descendants the love and veneration for their names and literary achievements which are their due.

The Bibliographer may be said to be a student of book physiognomy. The format, binding, paper, types, the author, title, printer, date, to him are interesting traits of book character. The inverted, broken or wrong letter, like the mole on a human face, he is quick to observe, and his warning "sic" is not so much intended to call attention to error, as it is to mark a distinguishing feature of the edition by which it may be recognized. There are minds so constituted as to be hypercritical to exactness in printing, but the true Bibliographer is tolerant of the foibles and weaknesses of the gentle art. He would, of course, prefer the page unsullied by error, but he also knows that Cicero would be Tully to him without the wart. In the true brotherhood of the Republic of Letters he knows no outward distinctions, and greets as warmly a long-sought friend in boards, uncut, with paper label, as if he found him wrapped in a cloak of Levant, with rich gold tooling, silk lined, with gilt and gaufered edges.

To him, a title-page bears the same relation to a book that the face does to the human body. It is the face of the book. It speaks the author's personality. If pleasant spoken, well favored to the sight, instinct with intelligence, direct of purpose, it invites desire for fuller knowledge and better acquaintance, just as a smile and friendly glance welcome to conversation. If coarsely worded, or treating of themes which interest not, it repels. If bold, aggressive, so, too, will be the words, the speech within. If worded quaintly, so will you find the mind within, well stored from books and imitating unconsciously the manners of a past age. Who can read the title of Nathaniel Ward's "Simple Cobler of Agawam," our number 1658, without wishing to know more of an author the face of whose book is at once so charming a mixture of wit, wisdom, learning and humorous conceit?

If read aright, the faces in this volume of the Fathers of American literature possess one attribute common to all of them—the virtue of a personal sincerity. They believed what they wrote. Under the broad brim is seen a face earnest, thoughtful, dignified, intense of purpose, hopeful, often sad, sometimes with a gleam of humor wrinkling around the steadfast look in the eyes. Conscious of their responsibilities, they are shaping the destinies and laying the foundations of a Nation on which to build the superstructure of a Republic. Their work is done. The results for which they labored and wrote are everywhere about us. To their memories should be accorded the undying gratitude of a people who have benefited by their teachings, to their printed words the reverential care due to the monuments of American literature, the sources of our National life. The true peerage of a Republic, the noblest order which can be formed, is that whose right and title rest in its literature. To their descendants belongs the duty of keeping alive the high ideals these Fathers of the Republic strove to impress upon the National character.

The earliest issues of the printing press in every country seem to follow the same general lines, which are apparently governed by the people's needs. As in the glorious dawn of printing came the sunburst of that matchless work, in the presence of which priest and pagan alike stand with uncovered head, the Bible of Gutenberg, so, too, the Fathers of New England gave to their people, as the first offering of the press, that Bible of New England, the Bay Psalm Book.

Crude in its form, with little of the grace and beauty which ennoble the fair and stately page of the Gutenberg Bible; a thing for jest, perhaps, to those who find pleasure in a turned letter and mirth in a misspelled word, but to the thoughtful bearing on the scarred and rugged face of its page something of the heroic spirit under difficulties with which it was composed. The best thought of New England was given to its composition and revision. It was the Bible of the common people far into the next century. In many households its rugged psalmody was the only way in which the praises of the Lord could be sung. Around it was fought the battle of singing scriptural songs in churches whose echoes reached to the New England memories of our own time. Its popularity was such that new editions were required every four or five years in the first century of its printing, and its use was transplanted to Scotland, where it was frequently reprinted.

To carry the comparison further, the recently discovered Astronomical Calendar for 1448, the earliest type-printed piece in the history of printing to which an exact date can be assigned, is paralleled in American literature by the little half-sheet Almanac of 1639, by William Pierce, mariner.

There yet remains another instance, the first, one without parallel in the literature of any country, and eminently characteristic of a Republic—the Oath of a Free-man stands alone. The literature of no other Nation parallels it. It is at once the expression of a free people; a charter of human liberty; the declaration of a right; the seal of a covenant.

For the rest, contrary to the usual belief, the number of books reprinted from Old World literatures is found to be few. Whatever may be the merits or defects of the literary record here given, it is our own. It smacks of the soil. It is the voice of a people earnestly seeking a solution of life under new conditions without the aid of Old World models. These Fathers of American literature were something more than pioneers. They were well equipped by educational training for their tasks. It has been estimated that in New England, in the seventeenth century, there was a graduate of an English university for every two hundred and fifty inhabitants.

As became the Founders of a Republic based on the principle of religious liberty, they sought to lay their foundations with spiritual wisdom. In their Theology we find little of modern exegesis, except as expounded in their sermons. They were content to accept the Bible literally. Questions of doctrine were fruitful subjects of controversy with them, but their Theology was largely practical, dealing with the family and social conditions about them, with children, youth, old age, sickness, death.

In Ecclesiology they accepted the conclusions of the Synod as the combined wisdom of the many and in keeping with the democratic form of their Government. I am speaking generally of the literature produced in New England, as it was the characteristic tone of American literature of this period. Their forms of worship were simple. The supreme test in sermon, prayer and praise was endurance. Singing and psalmody were, naturally, fruitful subjects of discussion. For a hundred years the congregations sang without rule. The service was earnest, but the volume of sound must have been awful.

The Ministers of the Gospel were the leaders of the people in medical and legal knowledge and the scientific thought of the time. The first Code of Laws was drawn up by a minister whose legal training had qualified him for this task. Against the protests of the practicing physicians of Boston, the ministers, under the lead of the Mathers, advocated and enforced the practice of inoculation for smallpox, the positions of the two professions being curiously reversed in our own day. In their ministry they were zealous and faithful workers, watchful of the people—and of each other. In sermonizing their activities were enormous, only a comparatively small part of which ever appeared in print. Besides the customary Sabbath discourses, they instituted and carried on the annual series of Ministerial Convention, Election of Artillery Officers, Election of Counsellors, Fast Day and Thanksgiving Day Sermons, and the weekly Lecture-Sermons, each with its distinctive character, together with numerous ordination and funeral sermons, and other occasions when the people gathered. To women they were most respectful and considerate, commemorating equally the virtues of the daughters in Zion or the mothers in Israel. To their colleagues in the ministry, beyond an occasional spat over a question of doctrine, they were considerate of their labors, their virtues and their posthumous fame. The death of one of their number usually evoked one or more funeral sermons, and not infrequently the mournful muse of elegy. Hemmed in by the mysterious wilderness inhabited by savages on the one hand, and by the ocean on the other, the grand, natural phenomena of Nature, like comets and earthquakes, became in fancy, and in fact, to them indications of the wrath of God, portents of impending doom, and superstition was evoked to add its terrors to the warfare which they believed to be always actually waging between the evil and the good.

Their Science was the crude scientific thought of their time, and the Almanac was generally the vehicle through which it was disseminated. That useful adjunct of every household had not yet reached the license so often commented on, but was usually the maiden literary effort of men who afterwards reached the highest dignity in church affairs.

Their Medicine, according to one practitioner, could be compressed into the saying in Ecclesiasticus: "He that sinneth before his Maker, let him fall into the hand of the physician." The great longevity attained by American writers of the period treated in this volume is remarkable, especially when the hardships of pioneer life are considered, and is probably the result of abstemious living and the hardy stock from which they sprung.

Their Law was largely without precedent, severe, subject to radical change even while the volume was printing, and the legal punishments for crime were judged more by theological than civil standards.

Works in eight different languages attest the various nationalities forming the population. The magnitude of the labor involved in the translation of the Bible into the Massachusetts Indian language by John Eliot dwarfing every other achievement of the early printing press. On the authority of Cotton Mather it is stated that this stupendous undertaking was written entirely with one pen. Two editions were printed. The work will always remain a monument to the profound scholarship of the translator, who was equally distinguished for his philanthropy, his piety and his learning. The conformity of this monumental work to modern philological principles of language has received deserved recognition in the present year by the publication, through the United States Bureau of Ethnology, of A Natick Dictionary, based on Eliot's Indian Bible, the posthumous work of the distinguished philologist and bibliographer James Hammond Trumbull.

For Literature of the class known as belles lettres, there was little cultivation in this period. Their books were written with serious purpose, and designed to instruct, not for mental relaxation. No translation of a classical author appeared for nearly a century after the press was established. It was ninety years after when the Morals of Epictetus—and the selection is of remark—was printed at Philadelphia. The first and only play was the work of a royal Governor, and little else, besides poems and elegies of dismal excellence, was produced or allowed. The advent of the newspaper may be said to have been the first attempt at the cultivation of literature as such, the "Hell Fire Club" of James Franklin's Courant being the first to give to this form of periodical publication the tone which has since been adopted as its own.

In questions of public policy we find them in this volume emerging only from a pastoral people, busied with local conditions, to the greater questions of finance, commerce and legislation in their relations with other countries and communities.

Of History there is little not their own. They were too busy making history. They builded even better than they knew. The very severity of their laws and religious beliefs made possible a Nation, in which the leaven of their teachings has, under God, been the saving grace.

It is a matter for congratulation, creditable in the highest degree to those who have conserved the literary interests of the United States in the past, that a record so full, and apparently complete, can be prepared after a lapse of two centuries, notwithstanding the calamities of fire and other causes which operate to destroy evidence of publication, and that so few, comparatively, of the issues of the early presses are not known in one or more copies. The principal events which have tended to the destruction of early American imprints are here given because of the importance of their dates in determining rarity and consequent values of books: In 1666 occurred the great fire of London. In 1690 the single number of the newspaper then attempted in Boston records several fires, in one of which the best appointed printing-office in the Colonies was destroyed. In 1711 occurred another disastrous fire in Boston, in which seven booksellers' shops were consumed. In 1764 the buildings and Library of Harvard College were destroyed by fire.

Speculation into the field of the unknowable and the reasons for conclusions reached are always interesting, often instructive.

In regard to the output of the printing-press in this country up to the beginning of the eighteenth century, it has been roughly computed at six hundred imprints. The actual number given in Dr. Samuel F. Haven's "Catalogue of American Publications" (Albany: 1874) is six hundred and forty-eight. The present volume describes nine hundred and sixty-seven imprints for the same period, and its author believes it to be doubtful that this number will ever be increased beyond the thousand mark. It has also been estimated (Power's Handy-book, page 41) that the yearly average of new books, including tracts, printed in England between the years 1700 and 1756 was ninety-three. For the twenty-nine years of this period included in this volume the total output was 2,278 separate imprints, or a yearly average of nearly seventy-nine. When the greater number engaged in printing in England is considered, the high average attained by the press in the American Colonies shows that it was fairly actively employed, and warrants the belief that the record here given is, at least, nearly complete, exceeding, as it does, the fullest previous records by over one thousand imprints. Some doubtful titles have been included, on the authority of earlier investigators, because it seemed better, in such cases, to err on the side of fullness rather than that of omission: but a much larger number, heretofore recorded, have been found inadmissible among American printed books. For various reasons the earlier American writers retained their former connections with English printers, and sent their manuscripts to England to be printed, sometimes with American imprints, even after the press had become well established in the Colonies.

The chronological arrangement has proved its perfect adaptability and superiority for reference, to an alphabetical arrangement of authors as the work proceeded. Its advantages are many. In works of similar character to this, whose publication extends over several years, as the AMERICAN BIBLIOGRAPHY must necessarily do, each volume completes its epoch and is an entity in itself. The grouping of historical events and of subjects which evoke publication are to the student of literary history and the historian of public affairs matters of first importance. To the bibliographical student, and all book lovers are such, the date of publication is the most important fact in the identification of books and editions; it is the key to all investigation. With its aid it is possible to unlock any clew of publication, and even the mutilated fragment yields its secret to the trained investigator. Without it, the identification is incomplete, open to doubt and misstatement. The careless omission of this fact in publication should be rectified whenever and wherever found. For remembrance, we repeat, the fact first in importance in bibliographical research is the date—always the date! For these reasons the chronological arrangement carries the full bibliographical description of each work, leaving to the briefer Index of Authors the duty of keeping the works of each author together—the sole advantage of an alphabetical arrangement. This has its interests, but not the practical advantages of the other. The serried ranks of the four hundred and thirty-five publications of Cotton Mather printed during his lifetime make an imposing array when marshalled into line, dwarfing the works of his less prolific contemporaries; but they give no hint of the underlying causes which evoked their publication, which a study of his works serially from year to year discloses.

The titles have been given throughout with bibliographical fullness and exactness of description whenever possible. This labor has been performed with scrupulous care from the works themselves, or from a comparison of existing authorities. The accidents of transcription have been reduced to a minimum by this labor being entirely the work of one hand. It is believed that this has been done in every instance possible with such fidelity as to title, imprint and description as to clearly identify each work, or edition, given, without possibility of error. The full names of authors, with the years of birth and death, have been given, and the authorship of anonymous or pseudonymous works carefully sought out, until there remain but few works the identity of whose authorship has not been ascertained. The use of line-marks, so dear to the heart of the young bibliographer, has been purposely avoided from what is believed to be a well-considered belief that they should have no place in modern bibliography. Their use belongs, and rightly, to the incunabula of printing, or to books without title-pages, and to these two classes their use should be restricted. The supposed advantage of using them in the description of modern books with title-pages is small, the liability to error, and to create editions which do not exist, great, and their use confuses, distracts and swells the bulk of the bibliography unnecessarily, without corresponding advantage.

For convenience of reference a serial number has been given to each work, or edition, described, and this Evans number identifies, and can always be used in literary or historical reference, without the inconvenience of long titular reference.

At the end of nearly every entry reference has been made to one or more Libraries where copies of the work can be found. These references being to well-known Institutions it is believed that the initial letters of their names, used to designate them, will sufficiently identify them without further explanation.

It should be remembered that the auction values given are, in nearly every instance, for copies in exceptional condition, perfect in all parts, and generally in extra bindings, and represent record rather than average auction values. Completeness, condition and rarity are the prime factors in determining values of old books. Excessive rarity only can give value to an imperfect book.

The Index of Authors gives a short title entry of each book described in the chronological arrangement, under the author if known, or under its title if anonymous, the government being considered the author of all official publications.

The Classified Subject-Index is a general guide to the subjects treated. It shows the wide range of interests which engaged the attention of the Fathers of the Republic in their character of foundation-builders, and is instinct with the life of the people.

A list of Printers and Publishers, which is also a typographical gazetteer, has been added, in deserved recognition of their honorable connection with American literary history, as well as for its bibliographical interest and importance.

In the production of the volume no practical expense has been spared. The paper, specially made, is designed for durability, and to admit of additions, with ink, of the shelf marks of libraries, the continuation of auction values and the notes of bibliographers. It is printed from an entirely new font of bourgeois type, in capital and small capital letters, lower case letters being used only for notes. This innovation in printing is warranted in a work treating solely of the title-pages of books, and justifies itself by the greater distinctiveness it gives to title entries.

The completed volume thus forming an outline history of printing and a practically complete historical, indexed, classified and priced Bibliography of American printed books for the first ninety years after the introduction of printing in the United States of America.

In appending a List of the Subscribers, received in advance of publication, it is with a desire to show a grateful appreciation of the incentive their practical support has been in the endeavor to make this a work in every way worthy of its theme and one of permanent reference value to the Institutions which they worthily represent.

1 MASSACHUSETTS BAY COLONY.

THE OATH OF A FREE-MAN.

[Cambridge: Printed by Stephen Daye. March, 1638, 9.] Sm. Broadside.

I (A. B.) being by Gods providence, an Inhabitant, and Freeman, within the Jurisdiction of this Commonwealth; do freely acknowledge my self to be subject to the Government thereof: And therefore do here swear by the great and dreadful Name of the Ever-living God, that I will be true and faithfull to the same, and will accordingly yield assistance & support thereunto, with my person and estate, as in equity I am bound; and will also truly endeavour to maintain and preserve all the liberties and priviledges thereof, submitting my self to the wholesome Lawes & Orders made and established by the same. And further, that I will not plot or practice any evill against it, or consent to any that shall so do; but will timely discover and reveal the same to lawfull Authority now here established, for the speedy preventing thereof.

Moreover, I doe solemnly bind my self in the sight of God, that when I shal be called to give my voyce touching any such matter of this State, in which Freemen are to deal, I will give my vote and suffrage as I shall judge in mine own conscience may best conduce and tend to the publike weal of the body, without respect of persons, or favour of any man. So help me God in the Lord Jesus Christ.

The first form of an Oath was drawn under the direction of the Corporation in England on 7 May, 1629, a little more than two months after the Charter of Charles I. to the Massachusetts Bay Company, and applied to allegiance as a Corporation. This form was altered soon after the arrival of Governor John Winthrop with the persons who formed the Massachusetts Bay Colony. The Public Library of Boston possesses the original draft of the form adopted by the Colony, in the handwriting of John Winthrop, the first Governor, which also bears a modified draft of the Oath, to which is first given the title, "The Oath of a man free or to be made free," and also "The Oath of a Servt." in the handwriting of Thomas Dudley, the second Governor of the Colony. This interesting document was reproduced in facsimile in the Bulletin of the Library for July, 1894. This form was again modified, at a Session of the General Court holden at Boston, 14 May, 1634, when, "It was agreed and ordered that the former Oath of freemen shal be revoked, so far as it is dissonant from the Oath of freemen here vnder written, that those that received the former Oath shall stand bound noe further thereby, to any intent or purpose, then this newe Oath tyes those that nowe take ye same." The text of the Oath followed above is that given in John Child's "New-Englands Jonas," printed in London in 1647, which was apparently reprinted from the Oath printed with the Capital Lawes of 1642, and is the form to which attaches the additional interest of being the first paper printed in what is now the United States of America. Under March, 1639, Governor Winthrop's Journal, I: 289, states: "Mo. 1.- A Printing house was begun at Cambridge by one Stephen Daye, at the charge of Mr. Glover, who died on sea hitherward. The first thing which was printed was the freemen's Oath; the next was an almanac made for New England by Mr. William Pierce, mariner; the next was the Psalms newly turned into metre." Besides this reference, the Freeman's Oath is given first place among the issues of the Press in the papers connected with the lawsuit instituted by Glover's heirs against Henry Dunster, the first President of Harvard College, whose marriage to Glover's widow gave him possession of the first printing press, which had been set up in his house at Cambridge. In its original form the Oath was printed on the face of a half sheet of small paper. No copy is known to be extant.

PIERCE, WILLIAM

-1641

AN ALMANACK FOR THE YEAR OF OUR LORD 1639. CALCULATED FOR NEW ENGLAND.

By MR. WILLIAM PIERCE, MARINER.

[Cambridge: Printed by Stephen Daye. 1639.] Sm. Broadside.

This title is given on the authority of Winthrop as given above. It is not, however, mentioned in the list of issues of Daye's Press in the lawsuit of Grover's heirs against Henry Dunster. No copy is known to be extant. There was printed at the Cambridge Press every year after one or more Almanacs. In all of them the year begins with the month of March.

[THE LIBERTIES OF THE MASSACHUSETTS COLONIE IN NEW ENGLAND. DRAWN UP BY NATHANIEL WARD.
Cambridge: Printed by Stephen Daye. 1641 ?.] fol.
This Code, the foundation of legislation in Massachusetts, consisted of one hundred Laws, of which the manuscript in the possession of the Boston Athenæum is a true copy. Its existence in any other form than this manuscript is doubtful. It probably was never printed. Trumbull, in his edition of Lechford's "Plain dealings," says it certainly was not printed. Two schemes of Laws for the young Colony were framed. One, by John Cotton, was rejected. The other, by Nathaniel Ward, was, after some amendment by the General Court, adopted in 1641. And this is the Code above referred to, which is known as "The Body of Liberties," and which was probably given force by means of manuscript copies furnished the legal authorities of the towns in the Colony. Its learned Author had not only been a minister in England before he removed to Massachusetts, but a practitioner in its Courts as well.
Cotton's proposed Code was printed anonymously in London in 1641, under the title of "An Abstract of the Lawes of New England as they are now established," and reprinted there in 1655. Its currency in these forms may have led to the error of supposing it to be the true Code adopted, and not a rejected Code as it has since been proved to be. It has been reprinted, also, in the Hutchinson Collection of Papers, 1769; in the Collections of the Massachusetts Historical Society, First series, vol. V, 1798; in vol. 3 of the Force Tracts, 1844; and by the Prince Society, 1865.
A facsimile reproduction of the Hutchinson manuscript of "The Body of Liberties," now in the possession of the Boston Athenæum, with a line-for-line printed version, edited by William H. Whitmore, was published by order of the City Council of Boston, in 1889.
- 7 NOYES, JAMES 1608-1656
A SHORT CATECHISM, AGREED UPON BY THE ELDERS AT THE DESIRE OF THE GENERAL COURT.
[Cambridge: Printed by Stephen Daye. 1641.]
A doubtful title. The reference in Winthrop's Journal, II:37, to a Catechism "which might be put forth in print," hardly warrants the inference that this Catechism was printed by Stephen Daye in 1641. No copy is known to be extant.

 BY THE COURT: IN THE YEARES 1641, 1642. CAPITAL LAWES, ESTABLISHED
 WITHIN THE JURISDICTION OF MASSACHUSETS. THE OATH OF A FREE-MAN.
[Cambridge: Printed by Stephen Daye. 1642.]
 These Laws form a part of "The Body of Liberties," number 94, in twelve sections, to which three more capital crimes were added 14 June, 1642, and are signed: "Per exemplar. Incre. Nowel, Secret." They were ordered to be printed 18th 3d month [May], 1642; and were evidently printed separate, and apparently previous to the printing of the whole Code. They are cited among the issues of the Press in the lawsuit of Grover's heirs against Henry Dunster; and are reprinted in full, apparently from the printed copy, in John Child's "New-Englands Jonas cast up at London," in the preface to which it is stated they were printed in Massachusetts. No copy is known to be extant.

 The Massachusetts Historical Society possesses an imperfect copy, printed in their Proceedings for March, 1860; and also in Sibley's
 "Harvard graduates," I:74.
- 13 A SPELLING BOOK.
[Cambridge: Printed by Stephen Daye. 1643.]
 Among the Dunster mss. in the Archives of Harvard College there is a list of the books printed by Daye, prepared for use in the Glover lawsuits, which gives "A Spelling Book" as printed between the "Capital Lawes" (1642) and Winthrop's "Declaration" (1645).

The first edition of the famous Cambridge Platform, called the text-book of New England Congregationalism. AND NOW REVISED BY THE SAME COURT, AND DISPOSED INTO AN ALPHABETICAL ORDER, AND PUBLISHED BY THE SAME AUTHORITY IN THE GENERAL COURT HOLDEN AT BOSTON, IN MAY, 1649.
Cambridge: Printed by Stephen Daye.? 1649. pp. 68? fol.
This Code of Laws, compiled by Richard Bellingham and others, has been apparently utterly lost. No copy, or fragment of a copy, is known to be extant. It appears of record that the Laws were printing in May, 1648, and that in October, 1648, the work was still at press. Whitmore estimates the number of pages from the paper used at about sixty-eight pages of text, and that an edition of about six hundred copies was printed. Owing to alterations ordered by the Court, the book was not salable at the fixed price of three shillings, and the edition was turned into waste paper, and many of them burnt. It is not improbable that some evidence other than the documentary evidence of the Laws having been printed may sometime be found if any copies were sent to England. The title given above is that of the edition of the Laws of 1660, the earliest known to be extant, and usually accepted as that of the earlier edition.

 It appears of record that a Catechism or primer for the use and instruction of the Massachusetts Indians was prepared by John Eliot, and printed in their language, sometime between September, 1653, and September, 1654. This is the earliest printed book in the Massachusetts Indian language of which any record has been found. Of an edition of five hundred, or a thousand copies, printed, no copy is known to be extant.

PEIRSON OR PIERSON, ABRAHAM

1608-1678

SOME HELPS FOR THE INDIANS SHEWING THEM HOW TO IMPROVE THEIR NATURAL REASON, TO KNOW THE TRUE GOD, AND THE TRUE CHRISTIAN RELIGION. 1. BY LEADING THEM TO SEE THE DIVINE AUTHORITY OF THE SCRIPTURES. 2. BY THE SCRIPTURES, THE DIVINE TRUTHS NECESSARY TO ETERNAL SALVATION. UNDERTAKEN AT THE MOTION, AND PUBLISHED BY THE ORDER OF THE COMMISSIONERS OF THE UNITED COLONIES. BY ABRAHAM PEIRSON. EXAMINED AND APPROVED BY THOMAS STANTON INTERPRETER-GENERAL TO THE UNITED COLONIES FOR THE INDIAN LANGUAGE, AND BY SOME OTHERS OF THE MOST ABLE INTERPETERS [sic] AMOGST [sic] US.

Cambridg. Printed by Samuel Green. 1658. pp. 67. Sm. 8vo. NYPL.

In the Massachusetts Indian language, with an English interlinear translation. A copy with the original title as first issued, and supposed to be unique, is in the Lenox Collection of the New York Public Library. It differs from the following only in the title leaf. John Scot, whom Trumbull terms a "mischievous adventurer," is apparently responsible for the substitution of the spurious title-page given below, which was evidently printed in England and inserted in copies there in place of the original title. The only copy with the changed title known to be extant is in the British Museum. A full account of these two impressions, and the probable reasons for the change in the title-page, is given in Pilling's "Bibliography of the Algonquian languages," pages 396-402.

- 74 BIBLIA. OLD TESTAMENT. PSALMS.
[UP-BOOKUM PSALMES.
Cambridge: Printed by Samuel Green and Marmaduke Johnson. 1668.]
32 leaves, 4to.
The Psalter or Book of Psalms translated into the Massachusetts Indian language by John Eliot, and struck off from the forms used in printing the Old Testament. No copy of the separate issue is known to be extant.
- 75 — — [VVAME KETOOHOMAE UKETOOHOMAONGASH DAVID.
Cambridge: Printed by Samuel Green and Marmaduke Johnson. 1668.]
52 leaves. 4to.
"All the-singing songs-of David." A metrical translation of the Psalms into the Massachusetts Indian language, by John Eliot. Although no separate copies have been found, an edition of about five hundred copies was printed, and probably bound separately, and perhaps with special titles. Trumbull was of the opinion that they were worked from the forms used in printing the whole Bible of this year. This edition is also given under 1664 as the more probable year of publication.

Cambridge: Printed by S[amuel] Green and M[armaduke] Johnson. 1668. pp.(87). 4to. AAS. BM. NYPL. 77
Mr. Davenport wrote two essays, of which the second only was printed, hence the title, "Another Essay."
- 79 — A DISCOURSE ABOUT CIVIL GOVERNMENT IN A NEW PLANTATION WHOSE DESIGN IS RELIGION. WRITTEN MANY YEARS SINCE, BY THAT REVEREND AND WORTHY MINISTER OF THE GOSPEL, JOHN COTTON B. D. [sic] AND NOW PUBLISHED BY SOME UNDERTAKERS OF A NEW PLANTATION, FOR GENERAL DIRECTION AND INFORMATION.
Cambridge: Printed by Samuel Green and Marmaduke Johnson. MDCLXIII. pp. 24. 12mo. MHS. 90
Although published under the name of John Cotton (1585-1652), it was really the production of John Davenport, of New Haven Colony, according to Cotton Mather's "Magnalia." Allibone says this book is so rare that a copy sold, in sheets, in New York, in 1847, for $14.50!

 This Sermon contains the well-known sentence: "God sifted a whole Nation that he might send choice grain over into this wilderness." The title-pages of both editions are precisely the same. But to save a signature when paper was imported and scarce, the matter contained in pages 86 to 88 of the first edition was compressed, in smaller type, in pages 39 and 40 of the second edition. Copies of both are in the Massachusetts Historical Society. An abridgment is given in "Elijah's Mantle," Boston, 1722; and passages from it are given in Thomas Prince's Election Sermon of 1730.

The following text from Rom. xiii: 18 is given on the title-page of some copies: "Let us walk honestly, as in the day; not in rioting and drunkenness; not in chambering and wantonness; not in strife and envying." The copies in the Massa- chusetts Historical Society, the Tower Collection of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania, and in the Brinley Collection, bear the more appropriate verses of Rom. xiii: 1, 2: "Let every Soul be subject unto the Higher Powers; for there is no Power but of God, the Powers that be are Ordained of God. VVhosoever therefore resisteth the power resisteth the Ordinance of God: and they that resist, shall receive to themselves Damna- tion,"—which latter verse serves also as the text on the title-pages of the Massachusetts Laws printed in 1660 and 1672. An exact reprint, in an edition of one hundred and fifty copies, with a prefatory note by George Brinley, was printed, for private distribution, at Hartford, in 1865.	800

The Boston Athenæum possesses a copy of this work, supposed to be unique, without a title-page, but with the running headline, "New-Englands Crisis," which presumably bore the same or a similar title to that of the London edition of this year, as given above. It was probably printed in Boston, by John Foster, who printed the separate broadside Funeral tribute to John Winthrop, or may have been printed by Samuel Green, at Cambridge. A very limited edition was reprinted in Boston in 1894. The John Carter Brown Collection of Brown University possesses a copy of the London edition of this year, issued anonymously, from which extracts are given in Dr. Samuel A. Green's sketch of Benjamin Tompson in the Proceedings of the Massachusetts Historical Society, Second Series, x:268.

BOND, SAMSON

A PUBLICK TRYAL OF THE QUAKERS IN BARMUDAS UPON THE FIRST DAY OF MAY, 1678. FIRST, THE CHARGE AGAINST THEM WAS OPENLY READ, CONTAINING THESE PARTICULARS: AS 1. THAT A QUAKERS PRETENDED SAVIOUR WITHIN HIM, IS NOT THE TRUE CHRIST, BUT THE FALSE CHRIST, THE DEVIL. 2. THAT THE MAIN END OF THE QUAKERS MEETINGS IN THESE ISLANDS, IS TO MAKE THE LORDS CHRIST, HIS HOLY SPIRIT, HIS ANGELS, AND APOSTLES, ALL LYARS AND FALSE WITNESSES OF GOD. 3. THAT THE PRIM-PRINCIPLES OF A QUAKER, ARE THE SAME HELD AND PROFESSSED BY THE BEASTS, WHICH PAUL FOUGHT WITH AT EPHESUS. SECONDLY, THE WHOLE CHARGE BEING PROVED BY THE TESTIMONY OF THE HOLY SCRIPTURES: WAS FOUND BY THE SHERIFFE, AND JUSTICES OF PEACE, A TRUE AND JUST CHARGE. THIRDLY, BEING FOUND GUILTY, THEY ARE HERE SENTENCED, AND BROUGHT FORTH UNTO THE DESERVED EXECUTION OF THE PRESSE.

The second edition of John Eliot's abridged translation of Bishop Lewis Bayly's "Practice of piety" into the Massachusetts Indian language. The date of 1685 follows the customary practice of giving the year of beginning printing; from Eliot's letter of 29 August, 1686, to Robert Boyle, it appears that the edition was not completed and bound until the summer of that year.

The second edition of John Eliot's translation of the Holy Bible into the Massachusetts Indian language "much corrected and amended." In the revision of which he was assisted by John Cotton of Plymouth. Two thousand copies were printed. The work consisting of 608 unnumbered leaves and two blank leaves, with title-pages in Indian only. The text is printed in double columns, with references at the side and headings, in Indian, at the top of each column, and a summary, in English, to each chapter not in the first edition. The printing of the New Testament began in 1680, and the whole work was completed in the autumn of 1685.

In the copies sent to England a dedication to Robert Boyle was added on a single leaf inserted after the title; this was omitted in copies intended for use of the Indians. An attempted facsimile of the dedication leaf was printed in 1855 for insertion in copies not containing the original.

gonquian languages," to which reference has before been made, cov-

(51) Mr. Cornelius Vanderbilt, New York City, purchased at the sale of the Brinley Library for $550. (52) The Library of Yale College, New Haven, Connecticut.

It is probable that other copies, some of which have appeared in early sale catalogues, will sometime pass from their now unknown possessors into the custody of the great public collections, which are rapidly absorbing such literary rarities when they appear.

With reasonable probability this is now considered the second issue of Bradford's Press. Hildeburn, I:4, concisely states the evidence favoring the view, that it was not printed in London. It has been reprinted in New York, in 1865, and in Cleveland, in 1908. The Brinley copy sold for $160, the Barlow copy for $400, and the Leffert's copy sold, in London, in 1902, for £125.

THE INDIAN INTERPRETER CORRECTED, ENLARGED, &c.

[Philadelphia: Printed by William Bradford. 1688.]

Title from an advertisement of Books printed and sold by William Bradford in Philadelphia in Leed's "Temple of Wisdom," printed this year. The supposed manuscript original, dated 1684, is in the office of the Secretary of State at Trenton, New Jersey. No printed copy is known of this earliest book on an Indian language printed in the Middle Colonies.

A. Philadelphia, Printed by William Bradford, for Hezekiah Usher. 1692. pp. 16. 12mo. MHS. This singular reappearance of the name of the first bookseller in the United States on the imprint of a book, printed in Philadelphia, after a period of over twenty-five years during which the business had been continued in Boston in the name of his son, John Usher, is perhaps explained and accounted for in the following note by Dr. Haven, in the second edition of Isaiah Thomas' "History of Printing in America." II: 205. "In 1692, a respectable man whose name was Hezekiah Usher, was accused of witchcraft, in consequence of which accusation he was ordered to be confined in the common prison; but on account of the goodness of his character, he was, by connivance, allowed to secrete himself in the house of a friend; and, afterwards to escape out of the hands of his persecutors, until the delusion or madness of the times, in part, subsided, and reason restored the balm of tranquility to the public mind. The person so accused was, probably, the bookseller, or one of his sons. See Brattle's Letter, Mass. Hist. Coll. 1st vol." The tract was reprinted in the "Congregational quarterly," xi: 400; and separately, in Boston, in 1869.	$180

It is evidently of much later date from the answer it elicited. The "Challenge" probably followed the publication of Pusey's An- swer to Leeds' "News of a trumpet," printed at Philadelphia in 1700. As no reply was made, a second "Challenge" was issued in 1701, to both of which Pusey then replied in his "Daniel Leeds, justly rebuked" printed at Philadelphia in 1702.

N. E. THE BOSTON NEWS-LETTER. PUBLISHED BY AUTHORITY. NUMB. 1. FROM MONDAY APRIL 17. TO MONDAY APRIL 24, 1704. [— December 1704.]

Boston: Printed by B. Green. Sold by Nicholas Boone at his Shop near the old Meeting-House. 1704. fol.

The first newspaper continuously published in what is now the United States of America. Founded by John Campbell, Postmaster. After No. 5. "Sold at the Post Office" takes the place of Boone in the imprint until November 10, 1707, when John Allen became the Printer until October 8, 1711. At this date the printing was resumed by Bartholomew Green "for John Campbell, Postmaster," to December, 1721. After which it was "Printed and sold by B. Green," to December, 1726. In January, 1727, Green changed the name to "The Weekly News-letter," beginning it No. 1. In November, 1730, the name was again changed to "The Boston Weekly News-letter" and the 1196 numbers which had been dropped added, the number at that date being 1896, and so continued to the death of Green, 28 December, 1782. Beginning with January, 1783, the paper was "Printed and sold by John Draper," his son-in-law, up to the time of his death, 29 November, 1762. The publication was continued by his son, Richard Draper, who, in January, 1763, altered the title to, "The Boston Weekly News-letter and New-England Chronicle," changing it again in about a year to "The Massachusetts Gazette, and Boston News-letter," and taking in his kinsman, Samuel Draper, as a partner. Samuel Draper, died in March, 1767, and Richard remained the sole publisher to May, 1768, when, up to September, 1769, the publication was singularly divided with The Boston Post-boy, by order of the Government, as "The Massachusetts Gazette." In September, 1769, the title of "The Massachusetts Gazette and Boston Weekly News-letter" was resumed. In May, 1774, Draper took John Boyle into partnership. His death occurring in June, his widow Margaret Draper succeeded him, with Boyle, who was a tory, as a partner for a short time. After the beginning of the Revolutionary war the paper was conducted by her, with John Howe as partner, until the evacuation of Boston by the British Troops, in 1776, when the publication of the "News-letter" ceased, and was never revived. No complete file is known. The New York Historical Society has a file of the first four years nearly complete, and about half the numbers between 1704 and 1720 are in the Massachusetts Historical Society.

In the introduction "To the christian reader," the author states, "This is the sixth book printed for me in single volumes." It has not been possible to wholly verify this statement. And much confusion seems to attach to the publications of the several authors of the same name living at this time. Quoting from the "Provincial Records," Sprague's "Annals" I:148, states: "The Legislature in December 1705, ordered two pamphlets sent them by John Rogers and John Rogers junior, to be burnt by the common hangman, near the whipping post in Boston." And makes the queer mistake of attributing the authorship of them to John Rogers, (1666-1745), son of John Rogers, President of Harvard College. Adding, in explanation of the fact that by Legislative appointment he preached the annual Election sermon in the following year, that the pamphlets which gave so great offense related probably to the opposition of the House to the instructions received from England regarding the Governor's salary. Sibley's "Harvard graduates," which is written with unusual care and accuracy, repeats the error, and states that with little doubt the authors were the Rev. Mr. Rogers, of Ipswich, and the Rev. Mr. Rogers, of Boxford. These authorities have generally been followed in this by biographers. There can be no doubt, however, that the pamphlets were written by John Rogers, of New London, and his son, John Rogers, junior, who was an active convert to his father's views, as we have the statement of the father, in

The Law under which the Quakers were prosecuted was made void by Act of the Queen in Council, October 11, 1705, and there is authority for the statement that the Act was published by John Rogers, in the same year. 	Boston, N. E. Printed by B. Green, and J. Printer, for the Honourable Company for the Propagation of the Gospel in New-England. &c. 1709. YC. This version of the Psalms, and Gospel of John, is an adaptation made for the benefit of the Indians of Plymouth Colony, and founded on John Eliot's translation into the Massachusetts Indian language, by Experience Mayhew. The dialect of the Indians of Martha's Vineyard had peculiarities of tone and spelling differing it from that of the main land; and Trumbull says that "every verse underwent revision and scarcely one remains without some alteration." James Printer was an Indian, who had learned printing under Samuel Green in Cambridge, and had worked on both editions of the Indian Bible. Some copies contain the prospectus, "Proposals for printing by subscription 'Psalterium Americanum,'" pp. 7. Regarding it, Sibley states: "In this singular publication, which is a close translation of the Hebrew, Dr. Mather has not only disregarded the modern practice of breaking the lines, whether rhymed or not, but he has run out (to use a printer's phrase) the whole matter; so that while each Psalm looks exactly like prose, and may be read as such, it is, in fact, modulated so that it may be sung as lyric verse. The learned Doctor says that in the 'twice seven versions' which he has seen, the authors put in as large a heap of poor things, which are entirely their own,—merely for preserving the clink of the rhyme, which after all is of small consequence unto a generous Poem, and none at all unto the melody of singing."

The first newspaper printed in the Middle Colonies, and the third to be continuously published in the United States. It was published by its founder, without change of title, until his death in November, 1742, and continued by his widow, Cornelia Bradford, until it was discontinued in 1746. After May, 1721, John Copson's name was omitted in the imprint, and William Bradford's name added, as vendor in New York, until December, 1725, after which it was "printed and sold by Andrew Bradford at the Sign of the Bible," and as Post Master from 1733 to 1737, till 1740, when for eleven months the name of his nephew, William Bradford, appears as partner. After his death his widow formed a partnership with Isaiah Warner on March 1, 1743, which was dissolved October 18, 1744. From that date until the Mercury was discontinued in 1746, it was printed and sold by Cornelia Bradford. Thomas appears to be of the opinion that its publication continued through the year; but Hildeburn could find no evidence of publication after May 22, 1746. A facsimile reprint has been lately undertaken, and several volumes issued, in Philadelphia.

THE RELIGION OF JESUS CHRIST THE ONLY TRUE RELIGION, OR, A SHORT AND EASIE METHOD WITH THE DEISTS. WHEREIN THE CERTAINTY OF THE CHRISTIAN RELIGION IS DEMONSTRATED BY INFALLIBLE PROOF FROM FOUR RULES, WHICH ARE INCOMPATIBLE TO ANY IMPOSTURE THAT EVER YET HAS BEEN, OR THAT CAN POSSIBLY BE. IN A LETTER TO A FRIEND. THE SEVENTH EDITION.

Boston: Printed by T. Fleet, and are to be sold by John Checkley . . . 1719. pp. (2), xii, 51, (7). 8vo. BPL.

For publishing and selling an edition of this book, printed in London in 1728, for sale by him in Boston, to which was added his "Discourse concerning Episcopacy," John Checkley was prosecuted in the Inferior Court in Boston in 1724, for issuing "a false and scandalous libel." He was convicted, and appealed to the Superior Court, in which the Jury gave the following verdict:

"The Jury find specially, viz. If the book entituled a Short and easy method with the deists, containing in it a Discourse concerning Episcopacy, (published, and many of them sold by the said Checkley) be a false and scandalous libel; then we find the said Checkley guilty of all and every part of the indictment (excepting that supposed to traduce and draw into dispute the undoubted right and title of our Sovereign Lord, King George, to the Kingdoms of Great-Britain and Ireland, and the territories thereto belonging.) But if the said book, containing a Discourse concerning Episcopacy, as aforesaid, be not a false and scandalous libel; then we find him not guilty."

Following the plea of his Counsel in arrest of judgment, Checkley addressed the Court, in a speech which was published in London in 1730, firmly maintaining the opinions expressed in the book of the supremacy of the Church of England. After which the Court sentenced him as follows:

"The Court having maturely advised on this special verdict, are of the opinion that the said John Checkley is guilty of publishing and selling of a false and scandalous libel. It's therefore considered by the Court, that the said John Checkley shall pay a fine of fifty pounds to the King, and enter into recognizance in the sum of one hundred pounds, with two sureties in the sum of fifty pounds each, for his good behaviour for six months, and also pay costs of prosecution, standing committed until this sentence be performed."

All of which reads like a special assessment case at the present time. Checkley paid the fine and costs of Court the next day, and was discharged. Sometime after he went to England, and after receiving Episcopal ordination, he returned to New England, and was for many years Rector of St. John's Church in Providence; and was, says Thomas, from whom this account is taken, highly esteemed for his learning and many amiable qualifications.

The text is in Indian on the left-hand side and in English on the right. This primer differs considerably from John Eliot's Indian primer of 1669 and 1687, and Pilling surmises that if the changes were made to conform it to the dialect spoken on Martha's Vineyard, it was probably prepared or edited by Experience Mayhew. Grindall Rawson's translation of John Cotton's "Spiritual milk for babes," originally printed in 1691, is on the verso of pages 80 to 46, but altered perhaps by another hand.

This remarkable arraignment of Governor Dudley was first published in London in 1708. Its authorship has been attributed, incorrectly it is believed, to the Rev. John Higginson. The initials A. H. signed to the dedication suggest Alexander Holmes, one of the subscribers to the Memorial to the Queen. Palfrey's "History of New England," iv : 310, doubts very little that Cotton Mather was more or less concerned in its publication, while Trumbull thinks that the smartness and pedantry of the style are characteristic of the Rev. John Wise of Chebacco.

A DISCOURSE HAD IN THE COLLEGE-HALL AT CAMBRIDGE, MARCH 27. 1722.
BEFORE THE BAPTISM OF RABBI JUDAH MONIS. . . . TO WHICH ARE ADDED
THREE DISCOURSES WRITTEN BY MR. MONIS HIMSELF, THE TRUTH, THE WHOLE TRUTH, AND, NOTHING BUT THE TRUTH . . .
*Boston: Printed by S. Kneeland for Daniel Henchman. 1722. pp. (2),

*Second title: MOSES A WITNESS TO OUR LORD AND SAVIOUR JESUS CHRIST. A DISCOURSE HAD BEFORE THE BAPTISM OF RABBI JUDAH MONIS, AT CAMBRIDGE, MARCH 27, 1722. BY BENJAMIN COLMAN.
Boston: Printed for Daniel Henchman. 1722. pp. (2), (2), 27.*
*Third title: THE TRUTH, BEING A DISCOURSE WHICH THE AUTHOR DELIVERED AT HIS BAPTISM, CONTAINING NINE PRINCIPAL ARGUMENTS THE MODERN JEWISH RABBINS DO MAKE TO PROVE, THE MESSIAH IS YET TO COME: WITH THE ANSWERS TO EACH, NOT ONLY ACCORDING TO THE ORTHODOX OPINION, BUT EVEN WITH THE AUTHORITY OF THEIR OWN AUTHENTICK RABBINS OF OLD. AND LIKEWISE, WITH THE CONFESSION OF HIS FAITH, AT THE LATTER END. DEDICATED TO THE JEWISH NATION. AND PREFAC'D BY THE REVEREND INCREASE MATHER, D. D. BY R.
JUDAH MONIS.
Boston: Printed by S. Kneeland, for D. Henchman, . . . 1722. pp.
(2), iv, vi, 36.*
*Fourth title: THE WHOLE TRUTH: BEING A SHORT ESSAY, WHEREIN THE AUTHOR DISCOVERS WHAT MAY BE THE TRUE REASON WHY THE JEWISH NATION ARE NOT AS YET CONVERTED TO CHRISTIANITY, BESIDES WHAT OTHERS HAVE SAID BEFORE HIM, AND LIKEWISE, HE PROVES THE DIVINITY OF CHRIST, NOT ONLY WITH THE AUTHOR-ITY OF THE SACRED ORACLES, BUT EVEN BY THE OPINION OF THE JEWISH AUTHORS OF OLD; AND ANSWERS ALL THE OBJECTIONS THAT THE DISCOURSE BRINGS FORTH
OUT OF ISAI. 9. 6, 7. CONCLUDING WITH A WORD OF EXHORTATION. BY R.
JUDAH MONIS.
Boston: Printed for Daniel Henchman, . . . 1722. pp. (2), 40.*
*Fifth title: NOTHING BUT THE TRUTH: BEING A SHORT ESSAY, WHEREIN THE AUTHOR PROVES THE DOCTRINE OF THE EVER BLESSED AND ADORABLE TRINITY, BOTH OUT OF THE OLD TESTAMENT, AND WITH THE AUTHORITY OF THE CABA-LISTICAL RABBIES, ANCIENT AND MODERN: AND THAT SAID DOCTRINE IS NOT A NOV-ELTY, AS HIS COUNTRY-MEN DO THINK, BUT AS ANCIENT AS THE BIBLE IT SELF. BY R. JUDAH MONIS.

MHS. Trumbull thinks this tract was manifestly inspired by Cotton Mather, and perhaps written by his nephew, Thomas Walter. The dedication is, "To my very worthy physician Mr. Zabdiel Boylston." Mun-Dungus may be a play upon the name and profession of Dr. William Douglass, who was opposed to inoculation, or Sawney may refer to him. His opponent in the debate is perhaps the French Doctor Lawrence Dalhonde, who testified before the Selectmen July 21, 1721, against inoculation.

WILLARD, SAMUEL

1640-1707

A COMPLETE BODY OF DIVINITY IN TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY EXPOSITORY LECTURES ON THE ASSEMBLY'S SHORTER CATECHISM WHEREIN THE DOCTRINES OF THE CHRISTIAN RELIGION ARE UNFOLDED, THEIR TRUTH CONFIRM'D, THEIR EXCELLENCE DISPLAY'D, THEIR USEFULNESS IMPROV'D; CONTRARY ERRORS & VICES REFUTED & EXPOS'D, OBJECTIONS ANSWER'D, CONTROVERSIES SETTLED, CASES OF CONSCIENCE RESOLV'D; AND A GREAT LIGHT THEREBY REFLECTED ON THE PRESENT AGE. . . . PREFAC'D BY THE PASTORS OF THE SAME CHURCH. . . .

Boston in New-England: Printed by B. Green and S. Kneeland for B. Eliot and D. Henchman, and sold at their shops. MDCCXXVI. pp. (2), iv, (8), (8), 1-158, 177-666, 581-914, (1). Portrait. Double columns. fol. BPL. HC. YC.

The posthumous publication of this monumental work was undertaken, and successfully accomplished, by the Author's successors in his church, Joseph Sewall, and Thomas Prince. It is the first folio volume, other than Laws, and the largest work up to this time printed in the United States. Owing to the fact of the printing being done by several presses, a number of pages are numbered twice, the text making just one thousand pages. Besides a catalogue of the Author's works published in his lifetime, it contains a list of names of about five hundred subscribers. When the time, and the subject, extent, and size of the work is considered, this list is a remarkable tribute to the memory of the distinguished Author from his contemporaries; and has large genealogical value as representative of the helpful, public-spirited citizenship of the period. Sibley knew of but one person who had read it carefully, and his opinion agreed with the high opinion entertained of it by the Author's contemporaries. As the values of books seem to grow in inverse ratio to their being read, this would seem to place a higher monetary value on this work than it has yet reached.

FROM FRIDAY SEPTEMBER 12, TO SEPTEMBER 19, 1727 [-December, 1727.] Annapolis: Printed by William Parks. 1727. fol. The first newspaper printed in Maryland. Founded by William Parks. A complete file is not known. Thomas apparently had never seen a copy. From the incomplete file in the Lenox Collection of the New York Public Library, it appears to have been first issued in September, 1727, and to have been published regularly up to Number 171, for December 23, 1730, notwithstanding the absence of its printer and proprietor in England for a part of the time, as appears from the following address in the issue for June 9, 1730: "Gentlemen, I Think it incumbent on me, to return you my Thanks for your continued Favours, in encouraging this Paper, during my absence. I made it my particular Concern, whilst I was in England, to settle such a correspondence there; by which, upon all Occasions, I shall be furnished with the freshest intelligence, both from thence, and other Parts of Europe. Complaints continue to be made, of the Interception of the Gazettes, before they come to the Hands of the Subscribers, notwithstanding all the publick and private Means that have been taken to prevent it. I can only assure my good Friends and Customers, that nothing is, or shall be wanting on my Part, to oblige them, and put a Stop to so vile a Prattice. I hope they will be so Good-natur'd, as to impute the Loss of some of their Papers to the base Cause above-mention'd, and not to any Neglect in your Much obliged, humble Servant, William Parks." The Gazette appears to have been discontinued for the year 1731. And certainly was not published in 1732. For on December 8, 1732, appeared Number 1 of "The Maryland Gazette reviv'd." Printed by W. Parks, and E. Hall. The partnership with Edmund Hall ceased at the expiration of the year 1733. The revived Gazette being continued by Parks certainly up to the 29th of November, 1734, when it probably ceased publication, as this number closed the second year under its changed title. In April 1745, the second newspaper printed in the Province, and bearing the same name, was begun by Jonas Green.

[Colophon:] Philadelphia: Printed by Samuel Keimer. 1728. pp. 4. fol. HBP. The second newspaper established in Pennsylvania, which, outliving all of its contemporaries of the Eighteenth Century, remained until nearly the middle of the Nineteenth Century, the oldest newspaper continuously published in the United States. Founded by Samuel Keimer, who relinquished its publication to Benjamin Franklin, and Hugh Meredith, after thirty-nine numbers had been issued. The new proprietors concluded the publication of extracts from Chamber's Dictionary, which had been the principal feature of the paper, expunged the first part of the title, and called it "The Pennsylvania Gazette." In May, 1732, the partners separated, the Gazette being continued by Franklin, "at the New Printing Office near the Market," and as Post Master after 1737. In 1739 the words, "Containing the freshest advices foreign and domestick," were added to the title. In 1748, David Hall was admitted to partnership, and the paper enlarged. In May, 1754, the famous device of a snake divided into eight parts representing the Colonies, with the motto "Join or die," first appeared in this paper. In November, 1765, publication was suspended on account of the Stamp Act, and when revived the paper was published without imprint until February, 1766, when the name of David Hall only appears as printer and proprietor. In May, 1766, the name of William Sellers was added to the imprint, and so continued to the death of David Hall in 1772. Hall was succeeded by his sons, and the Gazette was continued by the firm of Hall & Sellers until 1777, when, in September, on the approach of the British Army to Philadelphia, the publication of the paper was suspended, and the press and material removed to York, Pennsylvania, where the printing of the Gazette was resumed from January to June, 1778. None of this issue are numbered. The publication was again suspended from June, 1778, to January, 1779, at which time the regular issue was resumed in Philadelphia, and numbered 2534, in continuation from September 10, 1777, which is numbered 2533. After the death of William Sellers, in 1804, the Gazette was printed by William and David Hall. In 1810, it was published by William Hall junior, and George Pierce. The first named died in 1813, and his partner in 1814. Publication was suspended for a short time in 1815, after which it was continuously published until 1845, when it was merged into the Daily North American, and as an entity the Gazette ceased to exist. There is a complete file of the Gazette from 1728 to 1804 in the Library Company of Philadelphia.
