Editor's Note

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln AnthroGroup and the UNL Anthropology Department are committed to encouraging a diverse approach to the study and practice of anthropology. This is reflected in the activities of the UNL AnthroGroup and the Anthropology Department, both sponsors of this publication. The articles in this volume represent a range of topics related to anthropology and other disciplines.

Many people deserve thanks for this volume of The Nebraska Anthropologist. First, thank you to the students who submitted their research to be read by others and adjusted their papers according to journal standards.

Many thanks to the assistant editors who took the time to review and edit the student submissions. This journal would not be possible without you.

Thank you Melissa Kruse for your assistance in formatting papers to prepare them for publication.

Thanks also go to the faculty of the UNL Anthropology Department who encouraged students to submit their papers.

Thank you to whoever purchases this journal. Your support of the UNL AnthroGroup and anthropology in general is greatly appreciated.
