1989-90 WINTER WORKSHOP

"Creative Use of Personal Diversity" Myers-Briggs Type Indicator

The Myers-Briggs Type Indicator is primarily concerned with the valuable differences in people that result from where they like to focus their attention, the way they like to take in information, the way they like to decide, and the kind of lifestyle they adopt. People with preferences opposite to yours tend to be opposite to you in many ways. They are likely to be weak where you are strong, and strong where you are weak. Each type has its own set of inherent strengths.

Come learn about your preferences -- extraversion/introversion; sensing/intuition; thinking/feeling; judgment/perception.
