EDITOR'S NOTE

After twelve years as its co-editor, Dr Graham Handley has decided to resign from the Review. He has many exciting literary projects - George Eliot, Elizabeth Gaskell, Anthony Trollope - which are going to occupy him full time, though I know that his continued interest and support are to be counted on.

Dr Handley's commitment to, and work for, the Journal have been tremendous. We are very grateful to him. I was delighted to be asked to join him two years ago when Kathleen Adams's ever-increasing burden of work made it necessary for her to relinquish her role as editor. He has been a kindly guide, and it has been a pleasure to work with him.

It is now a pleasure to welcome the Review's new editor: Dr John Rignall of the University of Warwick. Many Fellowship members will already know Dr Rignall, who - with such seeming effortlessness - organized the 1992 George Eliot Conference at Warwick, which was sponsored jointly by the English Department of the University and the George Eliot Fellowship. His connection with the Review can only strengthen the bond that is already established between the University and the Fellowship.
