William M. Ferraro has been an editor with the Ulysses S. Grant Association, Southern Illinois University Carbondale since 1992. He has assisted with each volume of The Papers of Ulysses S. Grant since volume 19. (Volumes 25 and 26 are due to appear this autumn). Prior to joining the Grant project, he worked as an NHPRC Fellow and Assistant Editor for The Papers of Salmon P. Chase, Claremont Graduate School, contributing to the first two volumes of that five-volume edition. His research interests have evolved from community studies to nineteenth-century political and family history. An initial draft of his article was presented to the 2002 ADE meeting in Washington, D.C. He wishes to thank his fellow panelists and the Documentary Editing staff for provoking revisions of his original presentation.

Susan E. Gray is Associate Professor of History at Arizona State University and coeditor of Frontiers: A Journal of Women Studies. She is the author of The Yankee West: Community Life on the Michigan Frontier (1996) and coeditor of The American Midwest: Essays on Regional History (2001). Gray has held major fellowships from the Charles Warren Center for Studies in American History, Harvard University, and the National Endowment for the Humanities. She has also held an appointment as visiting professor at the John F. Kennedy Institute for North American Studies, Free University of Berlin. This article is based on her presentation at the 2002 ADE meeting in Washington, D.C.
