CENTER FOR SYSTEMATIC ENTOMOLOGY, INC.

P. O. Box 140429, Gainesville, FL 32614-0429

The Center for Systematic Entomology is a non-profit support organization for systematic entomology at the Florida State Collection of Arthropods, as well as for the systematics community in general. Becoming a member of this organization lends your support for curation and systematic studies at the FSCA and any related activities such as field studies and grants to individuals, for the enhancement of systematics and the FSCA. As the Center increases its endowment, a priority goal is to increase systematic studies of arthropods of the world in general.

In 1990 a grants program was begun with up to $600 in two individual grants per year, for studies on FSCA specimens or for other systematic studies related to the development of the FSCA and our knowledge of arthropod biology and taxonomy. Two grants were awarded in 1990. This is a useful program that we hope to continue at higher rates in the future and with your support.

In 1991 the CSE has commenced publication of the scientific journal Insecta Mundi, which was previously published by Sandhill Crane Press. We hope you will provide your support of this excellent new journal, now in its fifth volume, and also subscribe, which as a member you receive at 20% off the subscription rate.

INSECTA MUNDI

Insecta Mundi is now the official journal of the Center for Systematic Entomology (Sandhill Crane Press published the journal for volumes 1-4). This quarterly scientific journal devoted to systematic entomology, and offering free page charges to subscribers, provides for rapid publication (within 3-6 months) in a large format (8 1/2 x 11 inches), and a peer-reviewed journal. Color illustrations can be included at modest cost. The journal is also indexed in all major abstracting services. Systematic entomology is greatly benefitted by this journal. Your separate subscription provides 4 issues of the journal and allows you to publish in the journal without any page charges (separates are extra). Please also have your library subscribe ($50.00 per year) in addition to yourself. Members of the Center get a 20% discount on Insecta Mundi (only $20 per year).

Your dues, subscription to Insecta Mundi, and any other contribution, are tax-deductible (your cancelled check is verification for IRS). Current members, please renew now for next year.
