Continuing Coverage of Country Driving

February 15, 2010 in Watching the China Watchers by The China Beat | Permalink

A reminder to our readers in Southern California that Peter Hessler will be in conversation with Ken Pomeranz at UC Irvine tomorrow, and the event is free and open to the public.

A schedule of the remainder of Hessler's Country Driving book tour is available here; if you're unable to see him speak in person, check out this lengthy discussion between Hessler and Tom Ashbrook of WBUR's "On Point" radio program. Elizabeth Lynch of China Law and Policy blog also interviewed Hessler recently, and full audio is available here. An excerpt from her interview can be read at The Huffington Post.

We've reviewed Country Driving, and have been reading what others think of the book as well. Reviews are appearing in a variety of places: just a few we've seen are at Urbanatomy, The Boston Globe, and the Minneapolis-St. Paul Star Tribune.

One interesting Country Driving-related web post we've come across lately deals with the Chinese translation of an article that Jeff Wasserstrom published in Time, in which he discusses Hessler's new book. When translated for the Chinese press, however, some parts of the essay were omitted — in particular, the entire section dealing with Country Driving. Bruce Humes has gone through Wasserstrom's piece and shown what didn't make the cut, which you can see for yourself at his blog.
