

University of Nebraska - Lincoln

DigitalCommons@University of Nebraska - Lincoln

Journal of the National Collegiate Honors
Council –Online Archive

National Collegiate Honors Council

Fall 2021

JNCHC 22-2: About the authors

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.unl.edu/nhcjournal>

Part of the Curriculum and Instruction Commons, Educational Methods Commons, Higher Education Commons, Higher Education Administration Commons, and the Liberal Studies Commons

"JNCHC 22-2: About the authors" (2021). Journal of the National Collegiate Honors Council –Online Archive. 687.

<https://digitalcommons.unl.edu/nhcjournal/687>

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the National Collegiate Honors Council at DigitalCommons@University of Nebraska - Lincoln. It has been accepted for inclusion in Journal of the National Collegiate Honors Council –Online Archive by an authorized administrator of DigitalCommons@University of Nebraska - Lincoln.

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

FRANÇOIS G. AMAR is Professor of Theoretical Physical Chemistry and a faculty member in the Honors College at the University of Maine. He formerly served as Dean of the College and as a member of the Board of Directors of NCHC. He currently serves on NCHC's Publication Board and the Professional Development Committee. He has broad interdisciplinary interests, including nanoscience, STEM education, international education, and sustainability. For fun he indulges in reading and writing poetry, cycling, zymurgy, and making wood-fired pizza.

ADAM BLINCOE teaches in the Cormier Honors College at Longwood University, where his greatest joy is to talk with students about books. He specializes in Neo-Aristotelian ethics and the nature of human flourishing. He teaches interdisciplinary courses including Love, Sex, and Friendship; Markets and Morals; and The Problem of Evil.

SARAI BLINCOE is Associate Professor and Chair of Psychology at Longwood University and serves as Assistant Dean of Curriculum and Assessment in the Cook-Cole College of Arts & Sciences. She teaches research methods and social psychology and serves as the Discipline-Based Educational Researcher for Longwood's S-STEM program.

TIM CHRISTENSEN is Senior Faculty Fellow in the East Carolina University Honors College and Associate Professor of Biology at ECU. He holds a PhD in genetics & development from Cornell and is an MFA candidate at ECU. He serves on NCHC committees, and his research is focused on impacts of curriculum on honors students.

LAUREN COLLINS is Assistant Teaching Professor of Asian Studies at the University of Colorado Boulder. She was previously a Teaching, Research, and Mentoring Fellow at the University of Montana Davidson Honors College, where she taught the core honors course Ways of Knowing and community-engaged courses focused on social issues in the community.

TEAL DARKENWALD is Associate Professor at East Carolina University, where she teaches dance, biomechanics, and dance composition. She is also an Honors Fellow in the ECU Honors College. Her scholarship involves interdisciplinary studies in the areas of motion capture, virtual reality, choreography, biofeedback, and biomechanics in dance.

BHIBHA M. DAS is Associate Professor in the Department of Kinesiology and Faculty Fellow in the East Carolina University Honors College. She received her doctorate in kinesiology and community health from the University of Illinois, and her research focuses on physical activity promotion to improve quality of life.

WIETSKA DE VRIES is a researcher at the research centers Talent Development in Higher Education and Society (TDHES) and Youth, Education and Society of Hanze University of Applied Science (UAS). Her research focuses on the impact of COVID-19 on education, honors education, and inclusive education.

KEVIN W. DEAN is Founding Chair and Director of the Honors College and Professor of Communication at West Chester University. A former National Kellogg Fellow, Dean holds a Lindback Distinguished Teaching Award and co-chairs the NCHC International Education Committee. He travels internationally presenting lectures and conducting research particularly in South Africa and Norway.

W. WAYNE GODWIN is Associate Professor in Art and Design at East Carolina University and Director of the Innovation Design Lab, a technology-based environment that uses design thinking to connect academics and industries for new products, processes, and policies.

NICOLE GOMEZ is Executive Director of the Free Verse Writing Project, which offers classes in creative writing and literature to young people incarcerated in juvenile detention centers across Montana. She has a degree in international relations from Stanford University and an MFA in creative writing from the University of Montana.

AMELIA HAWES is an undergraduate student studying political science through the Davidson Honors College at the University of Montana. She plans to pursue a career as a legislator or social researcher and is interested in understanding how government and administrative policy can be used to reduce inequality and improve life outcomes for people who have experienced trauma and victimization.

JORGIA HAWTHORNE is an undergraduate in her sophomore year studying political science. She is a member of the Davidson Honors College at the University of Montana and is also exploring a second degree in journalism and a minor in nonprofit administration. In the future, she hopes to combine her three interests to advocate for and assist those who are disadvantaged by unfair legal systems by fixing these systems from the inside out.

ELIZABETH HODGE is Assistant Dean for Innovation and Strategic Initiatives, Professor, and Faculty Fellow in the East Carolina University Honors College. Hodge also serves as Director of Engaged Research; she develops and directs programs that strengthen community connections in eastern North Carolina and generates extramural funding proposals to support engaged scholarship.

MICHAEL B. JENDZURSKI is a Doctor of Chiropractic (Life University, GA) and holds an MA in communication and BS in kinesiology from West Chester University. A current alumni leader, Jendzurski was president of the Honors Student Association and Omicron Delta Kappa, participated in eight international programs, and published subsequent research.

BIRTE KLUSMANN is a researcher at the research center Talent Development in Higher Education and Society (TDHES) of Hanze University of Applied Science (UAS). She conducts research on the impact of the pandemic on teachers and their needs in the transition to more blended education. She is also a PhD student at the University Medical Center Groningen, conducting research on improving the well-being of teachers.

ANNEGIEN LANGELOO is a postdoc researcher at the researcher center Talent Development in Higher Education and Society (TDHES) of Hanze University of Applied Sciences (UAS). She conducts research on the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on teachers and their needs in the transition to more blended education as well as on the accessibility of honors education for first-generation students.

KRISTINE A. MILLER is Professor of English and Executive Director of the Utah State University Honors Program. Her publications include two books and many articles on British representations of the WWII home front and transatlantic representations of 9/11 as well as the 2020 NCHC monograph Honors Contracts: Insights and Oversights.

CARLA JANELL PATTIN is an assistant professor at the University of Toledo Honors College. She received her doctorate in social foundations of education from the University of Toledo, and her research focuses on Black feminism and multicultural education, American ideology, and intersectionality.

ERIN SALDIN is Assistant Professor of English at the University of Montana, where she divides her time between the Davidson Honors College and the creative writing program. A recipient of the Teacher of the Year Award from the Davidson Honors College, she is the author of two novels, The Dead Enders and The Girls of No Return, and is currently at work on a third.

GERALD WECKESSER is Professor and Faculty Fellow in the East Carolina University Honors College as well as a faculty member in the School of Art and Design, overseeing the Woodshop and Digital Fabrication studios. He received his MFA from the University of Massachusetts/Dartmouth focusing on practices in artisanry.

MARCA V. C. WOLFENBERGER is a professor and leads the research center Talent Development in Higher Education and Society (TDHES) at Hanze University of Applied Science (UAS). She is an NCHC Fellow and member of the NCHC Research Committee. She has written about 120 publications, including four books, and delivered keynote speeches on talent development and honors education around the world. Wolfensberger's landmark book Talent Development in European Higher Education (Springer, 2015) spurred the creation of the European Honors Council. She is a board member of the Journal of the European Honors Council.

BETSY GREENLEAF YARRISON, who teaches in the Klein Family School of Communications Design at the University of Baltimore, was the founding director of their Helen P. Denit Honors Program. She currently serves as president of the Maryland Collegiate Honors Council and co-chairs NCHC's Awards & Grants Committee and its Education of the Gifted Special Interest Section.