NATIVE AMERICAN NATIONAL INTERN PROGRAM

The American University announces a new program designed to bring Native American college students to Washington for internships in private and public agencies. The purpose of the project is to develop a strong group of future Native American leaders, well versed in the ways of Washington. Graduates of the original internship program will be encouraged to continue to participate in the program as researchers working with tribal communities. Tribal leaders across the country will nominate students for the internship program. For more information, please contact David C. Harrison,

Director, NANIP, Office of Summers Sessions, American University, Washington, D.C. 20016-8126, (202) 885-2421, FAX (202) 885-1072.
