Abstract:

The purpose of this study is to evaluate the websites of postgraduate ophthalmic colleges in India using the Alexa Internet Website Traffic, Statistics and Analytics. A total of 263 postgraduate ophthalmic colleges in India which have the web presence are included in the study. Each college website was searched in the Alexa Internet and data of Website Traffic, Statistics and Analytics is collected. The collected data is organized, tabulated and visualized using excel. The results of the analysis give interesting insights about the colleges' websites. The colleges, Dr SN Medical College, Jodhpur and R N T Medical College, Udaipur have highest global rank and daily time on site. Meenakshi Medical College and Research Institute, Enathur have the highest bounce rate. The college website, SMS Medical College, Jaipur has the highest number of links. The study will provide important insights about the website usage to the colleges which will help them to strengthen their website.

Keywords: Ophthalmic colleges, MCI, India, Webometric, Alexa Internet; Traffic Statistics

1. Introduction:

Almind and Ingwersen had coined the word "Webometric" in the year 1997. The Webometric studies serves as a yardstick to measure the websites, web pages, web content, web links and web traffic. The websites of the PG ophthalmic college websites in India plays a vital role in the medical higher education system. It serves as a important communication platform between the medical students and the college. The aim of this study to assess and understand web traffic details of the PG ophthalmic college websites in India by using Alexa Internet web traffic statistics.

The Alexa Internet, Inc is a California based company which is a subsidiary of Amazon.com. It collects users' browsing behavior through its tool bar and provides commercial web traffic data. The traffic data is based on the browsing behavior of the user in the past 3 months. There are four key attributes in the traffic data and they are:

Attribute 1: Global Rank – It is calculated based on the unique visitors of the websites and no. of page views. The highest combination of unique visitor and page view is ranked as #1.

Attribute 2: Daily Time – Daily time spent on the site by the user.

Attribute 3: Bounce Rate – It is the percentage of single page visits in which the person left the site.

Attribute 4: Links – It indicates the number of websites connected to the certain website.

The Alexa Internet web traffic data facilitates to measure the performance of the website. This Webometric study on the PG ophthalmic college websites will assess the usage of the college websites. The study results will provide a glimpse of knowledge to the colleges to understand their websites' performance ratings. It will be helpful to the colleges to initiate constructive actions to improve their website and their web presence. The effective web presence of these websites in Internet will create a powerful impact among the medical student community.

2. Review of Literature:

Verma, M. K., etal (2017) analysed the National Libraries' websites in South Asia and calculates the web impact factor. The study results found that the Web Impact Factor of National Library of India is the highest among the other national libraries websites. Ramanayaka, K. H., (2018) explored the University Library Websites in Sri Lanka and evaluates its visibility. This study proposed a framework to measure the performance of the websites. The library website of the Open University of Sri Lanka was ranked 1st under the WISER index while the library website of University of Moratuwa was ranked 1st under the WIF (inlinks) index. Rani, S., etal (2018) examined the websites of State Health Sciences Universities of India using Alexa Internet traffic data. The study results revealed that the Dr. N.T.R. University of Health Sciences and Sri Venkateswara Institute of Medical Sciences universities of Andhra Pradesh State were on the top. Ayoub, A. etal (2019) measured the global Visibility and Web Impact of Leading Universities of SAARC Nations by using webometric techniques. The study results had proved that Indian universities have a better scholarly output though Pakistan universities are more visible on the WWW. Maqbool, T. (2019) studied the performance of the knowledge portals of National Repute in India. The study found that Shodhganga is having best rank at global and Indian levels.

3. Objectives of the study:

- To investigate the PG ophthalmic college websites with each of the attributes of Alexa Internet Website Traffic Statistics in overall.
- To analyze the PG ophthalmic college websites with each of the attributes of Alexa Internet Website Traffic Statistics by courses.
- To assess the PG ophthalmic college websites with each of the attributes of Alexa Internet Website Traffic Statistics by management type.
- To investigate the PG ophthalmic college websites with each of the attributes of Alexa Internet Website Traffic Statistics by zone.

4. Methodology:

This study used Medical Council of India (MCI) website for collecting postgraduate ophthalmic college details. The postgraduate ophthalmic courses referred here are Diploma in Ophthalmology and MD/MS – Ophthalmology. The college details collected from the MCI website includes college name, website, course name, university affiliated, management type and state name. Zone of each college was defined based on MHRD state zone definition and state name of the college. Using the Alexa Internet Website Traffic, Statistics, and Analytics, each website of the college name is measured on 21st July 2019. Ms-Excel was used to organize, tabulate and visualize the collected data.

5. Results and Findings:

A total of 265 college details which are conducting postgraduate ophthalmic courses were collected from the MCI website. Among the 265, only 263 colleges have website details and they are included this study. Table 1 show up the demographic details of postgraduate ophthalmic colleges in India.
