YOUR INVITATION TO JOIN US . . .

NETWORK

PROFESSIONAL AND ORGANIZATIONAL DEVELOPMENT NETWORK IN HIGHER EDUCATION

Dear Colleague:

We invite you to join the Professional and Organizational Development (POD) Network in Higher Education. We are an association of people bound together by our interest in improving higher education through faculty, instructional, and organizational development activities and programs. The Network was created in 1976 to help us meet others who share our interests and concerns; to exchange information, ideas, and resources; to enhance our professional skills; to debate issues and strategies; and to contemplate and plan for the future.

Our annual conferences have provided exceptional opportunities for pursuing these goals. Those of us who have attended previous conferences appreciate these occasions to get together with our colleagues. We believe we've found a place to discover new developments in our field and to keep track of work already underway. We eagerly anticipate getting an early look at recently published and locally developed materials of special interest. We look to conference sessions for training in particular strategies and skills. And we look forward to the collaborative exploration of issues which each of us confronts on our own campus.

POD has also offered intensive national and regional training workshops on strategies and skills of special interest to members--e.g. "Instructional Diagnosis and Consultation," "Life Planning," "Organizational Development," "Working with Administrators to Facilitate Faculty Development." Participants in these workshops found them to be excellent opportunities to learn new approaches and to refine their skills. These workshops have been and will continue to be offered at substantially reduced rates for our members.

We are especially pleased that Charles Goldsmid, director of the American Sociology Association's Teacher Development Project, has agreed to edit a quarterly newsletter for us in 1978-1979. We expect each issue to focus on a theme of special interest to our members. The newsletter will also include articles by our members, research summaries, book reviews, news about conferences and training opportunities, etc. We think it will be a major contribution to our "networking" efforts.

We hope, then, that you will join us for 1978-1979. We look forward to an exciting year for the POD Network.

Sincerely,

Glenn R. Erickson
Executive Director, 1978-1979

P.S. If you are already a POD member, please renew now for 1978-1979.
