

2011

About the Authors

Follow this and additional works at: <http://digitalcommons.unl.edu/nhcjournal>

"About the Authors" (2011). Journal of the National Collegiate Honors Council --Online Archive. 311.
<http://digitalcommons.unl.edu/nhcjournal/311>

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the National Collegiate Honors Council at DigitalCommons@University of Nebraska - Lincoln. It has been accepted for inclusion in Journal of the National Collegiate Honors Council --Online Archive by an authorized administrator of DigitalCommons@University of Nebraska - Lincoln.

About the Authors

Larry Andrews is Dean Emeritus of the Kent State University Honors College. His Rutgers PhD in comparative literature led to a forty-one-year academic career that included teaching in Poland and Russia. He has published on Russian, French, and African American literature as well as on honors fundraising.

Jaclyn Bankert is working toward her MPA in Policy Research and Analysis at the University of Pittsburgh. She is currently Housemaster for the University Honors College residence for upperclassmen. She was also the student facilitator for the Brackenridge Fellowship 2009–2011.

Sister Edith Bogue is Associate Professor of Sociology and former Associate Director of the Honors Program at the College of St. Scholastica in Duluth, Minnesota. She continues to teach in the honors program while chairing the college's self-study committee for ongoing accreditation and the Undergraduate Curriculum Committee.

Bernice Braid is Director Emeritus of the University Honors Program, Long Island University Brooklyn, where she taught lower-division and advanced courses. A past president of NCHC, she has worked with the Honors Semester Committee since the first national Honors Semester. She invented City As Text™ to serve as an integrative seminar in experiential programs and now directs Core Seminar.

Marian Bruce is Assistant Dean of the University Honors College, University of Alaska Anchorage. She holds an MA in English from the University of Oregon and an MBA from the University of Alaska Anchorage. She coordinates the honors academic programs at UAA as well as its undergraduate research programs and annual undergraduate research symposium.

Scott Carnicom is Associate Professor of Psychology and Associate Dean of the Honors College at Middle Tennessee State University. For the 2011–12 academic year, he is serving as a fellow of the American Council on Education and working in the Office of the President at Kenyon College. He is a member of the NCHC Publications Board and also serves on the editorial board for Honors in Practice.

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

James J. Clauss is Professor of Classics, Director of the University of Washington Honors Program, and Associate Dean of Undergraduate Academic Affairs. He is the author of Best of the Argonauts (1993), co-editor of Medea (1997) and The Companion to Hellenistic Literature (2010), and co-translator of Rome and Environs (2008).

Craig T. Cobane is Director of the Western Kentucky University Honors College and currently holds the Jarve Endowed Professorship in Honors. He earned his PhD from the University of Cincinnati in political science. He is an NCHC-Recommended Site Visitor, serves on the editorial board for Honors in Practice, and is the recipient of numerous teaching awards and national fellowships.

Theodore Coladarci, who has been at the University of Maine since 1983, is presently Director of Institutional Research and Professor of Educational Psychology.

Kevin L. Dooley is Dean of the Honors School and Associate Professor of Political Science at Monmouth University, where, in addition to his administrative duties, he teaches courses in political theory and ethics in international relations.

Richard England is Associate Professor of Philosophy and former Director of the Bellavance Honors Program at Salisbury University, where he still teaches honors courses. He studies post-Darwinian intellectual controversies and recently co-edited, with Jude Nixon of Salem State University, a volume on nineteenth-century Science, Religion and Natural Theology (2011). He is also a past president of the Northeast Regional Honors Council.

Linda Frost is Professor of English and Director of the Eastern Kentucky University Honors Program. The author of Never One Nation: Freaks, Savages, and Whiteness in U.S. Popular Culture, 1850–1877 (U of Minnesota P, 2005) and editor of Conjoined Twins in Black and White: The Lives of Millie-Christine McKoy and Daisy and Violet Hilton (U of Wisconsin P, 2009), Frost is a member of the Publications Board of the National Collegiate Honors Council.

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

Anmarie Guzy is Associate Professor of English at the University of South Alabama, and she holds a PhD in Rhetoric and Professional Communication from New Mexico State University. She currently serves on the NCHC Teaching and Learning Committee and the advisory board for the online journal First-Year Honors Composition.

Mark Haggerty is the Rezendes Preceptor of Civic Engagement at the University of Maine. His research interests are in the boundary areas of environmental policy, FairTrade, and food systems.

Nathan Hilberg received his PhD in Religious Studies and his PhD Certificate in Cultural Studies from the University of Pittsburgh. He is Director of Academic Affairs in the University Honors College at the University of Pittsburgh and is affiliated faculty with the Department of Religious Studies.

Mimi Killinger is Rezendes Preceptor for the Arts in the University of Maine Honors College. She teaches interdisciplinary courses, including an introduction to local arts and culture, and serves annually on numerous UMaine honors thesis committees across a variety of academic disciplines.

Kenneth Oswald is a full-time lecturer in the Northern Kentucky University Honors Program, where he also serves as Coordinator of Honors Capstone Research. His research focuses on the evolutionary genetics of rare and imperiled freshwater fishes.

Benjamin Moritz is Director of the Honors Program at Metropolitan State College of Denver. He has served on the executive board of the Northeast Regional Honors Council and is on the Major Scholarships Committee for the NCHC. He received his DMA from Northwestern University and has published several articles on the music of Nietzsche.

Gladys Palma de Schrynemakers, Associate Provost at Long Island University Brooklyn, teaches social sciences in the University Honors Program. Since its inception, she has taught Core Seminar: The Idea of the Human and presented her design for field explorations in which students experience and integrate literary work in a societal context. She has published frequently on the theory and practice of constructing knowledge.

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

Debra S. Schroeder is Director of the Honors Program and Associate Professor of Psychology at The College of St. Scholastica in Duluth, MN. She serves on the Small College Honors Program Committee of NCHC and has been the Minnesota faculty representative on the Upper Midwest Honors Council. Her areas of research have included the benefits of being an honors student and the role of gender in faculty-student mentoring relationships.

Charlie Slavin is Dean of the Honors College at the University of Maine. In a previous life he was on the mathematics faculty, having earned degrees at Princeton and Wisconsin, and he is quick to point out that all things that involve numbers aren't mathematics. Moreover, he'd much rather watch Sam play hockey and soccer than attend "blah, blah, blah" meetings.

Ernest Smith is Professor of English at Northern Kentucky University and former Director of the NKU Honors Program.

Becky L. Spritz is Associate Professor of Psychology and Assistant Director of the Roger Williams University Honors Program. In addition to her research and teaching in psychology, she teaches interdisciplinary honors seminars on families in society. She also serves on the NCHC Small College Committee.