ABSTRACT: Military training can often be destructive to the environment. Environmental impacts associated with heavy training include soil compaction, soil erosion, siltation of waterways and wetlands, increased threat of flooding, loss of wildlife habitat, declining biodiversity, and invasion by noxious weeds. Planning and implementing land rehabilitation projects generally involves some soil movement, establishment of vegetation, stabilization and hardening of sites, etc. Procurement of appropriate heavy equipment and other specialized equipment is sometimes a difficult task that involves obtaining multiple vendors, especially when procuring equipment for rental, lease, or purchase. This report and associated database were created to help land managers easily identify and obtain potential vendors for the equipment needed for land rehabilitation projects. This report includes a comprehensive and up-to-date list of heavy equipment vendors within the United States, primarily for rental or leasing purposes, which includes vendors of construction, agriculture, and other equipment needed for erosion control, and land rehabilitation and maintenance. Volume I of this report lists vendors located within 100 miles of Army installations, and National vendors. Volume II lists all vendors state-by-state.

Preface

This study was conducted for the Directorate of Military Programs, Headquarters, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers under PROMIS #CNN-QD63, “Land Rehabilitation and Maintenance Equipment Sources,” Work Unit 8J81C9. The technical monitor was Malcolm E. McLeod, CEMP-II.

The work was performed by the Ecological Processes Branch CN-N of the Facilities Division CN, Construction Engineering Research Laboratory (CERL). The CERL Principal Investigator was Heidi R. Howard. The technical editor was William J. Wolfe, Information Technology Laboratory. Stephen E. Hodapp is Chief, CEERD-CN-N, and John T. Bandy is Chief, CEERD-CN. The associated Technical Director was William D. Severinghaus, CEERD-CV-T. The Director of CERL is Dr. Alan W. Moore.

CERL is an element of the U.S. Army Engineer Research and Development Center (ERDC), U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. The Commander and Executive Director of ERDC is COL James R. Rowan, and the Director of ERDC is Dr. James R. Houston.
1 Introduction

Background

The mission of the Army is to be prepared for war. The training involved in mission preparedness can be and is destructive to the environment. Environmental impacts associated with heavy training may include soil compaction, soil erosion, siltation of waterways and wetlands, increased threat of flooding, loss of wildlife habitat, declining biodiversity, and invasion by noxious weeds. Environmental degradation has a negative impact on the training mission as well. Tactical concealment resources are lost. Realism of the natural environment is diminished. Heavily eroded areas become dangerous or impassable with tactical vehicles. Moreover, public concern over the condition of military training lands is also a serious consideration.

As a result of the concerns expressed by military land managers and trainers over the declining condition of training and testing lands, the Army's Integrated Training Area Management (ITAM) program was implemented. ITAM includes land condition and trend analysis (LCTA), environmental awareness (EA), Range & Training Land Program (RTLP), and Land Rehabilitation and Maintenance (LRAM). LRAM is essential to training land health and functionality. An important aspect of LRAM is the repair, rehabilitation, and maintenance of training lands.

Planning and implementing land rehabilitation projects generally involves some soil movement, establishment of vegetation, stabilization and hardening of sites, etc. Procurement of appropriate heavy equipment and other specialized equipment is sometimes difficult for the land manager. It is necessary to obtain multiple vendors, generally when procuring equipment for rental, lease, or purchase. This report and database were generated to help land managers easily obtain and identify potential vendors for the equipment needed for their land rehabilitation projects. Volume I of this report lists vendors located within 100 miles of Army installations, and National vendors. Volume II lists all vendors state-by-state.

Objective

The objective of this research was to create a comprehensive and up-to-date list of heavy equipment vendors within the United States, primarily for rental or leasing purposes. The list includes vendors of construction, agriculture, and other equipment needed for erosion control, and land rehabilitation and maintenance.

Approach

Researchers developed a vendor list by securing and compiling past technical reports, heavy equipment databases, and business information from web-based telephone directories. Using the key phrases “agricultural equipment,” “lawn & garden equipment & supplies renting,” “earth moving equipment rental,” “tractor rent and lease,” “heavy equipment,” “equipment rental,” “contractors equipment,” “machinery rental,” “contractor equipment and supplies,” “land equipment,” “heavy equipment rental,” and “tractor rental,” over 20,000 businesses were identified across the United States. The resulting list was cross-referenced with web-based vendor lists. Duplicate businesses were removed from the list, and the list was augmented from the other databases. All vendors were contacted and questioned to determine whether they rent, sell and/or lease any of the following equipment: field cultivators, rippers/subsoilers, crimper, harrows/disk harrows, seed harvesters, chisel plows, culti-packers, drum grinders, stump grinders, bush hogs, shredders/wood chippers, broadcast spreaders, boom sprayers, trenchers/chain trenchers, graders, terrace builders, crawler loaders, crawler dozers, backhoe excavators, backhoe loaders, 20-50 hp compact utility tractors, 50-120 hp utility tractors, 100-260 hp farm row tractors, 280-500 hp 4WD articulated tractors, cranes, skid steers, sod cutters, all terrain vehicles, and/or water trucks. Vendor information includes: name, street address, telephone number, web address, and if the equipment was for rent, lease, purchase, or via some combination of the three availability options.

A vendor database was created using Microsoft Access 2003 and Ziplist5 ™ (http://www.zipinfo.com/) products. The database includes both State-by-State and National lists. (If a company was located in three (3) or more states, that company was then placed on the National list.) Sources of information included:

H&H Sales and Manufacturing (June 2004), available through URL: http://www.ezattachments.com/id139.htm

Users of this list of sources should be aware that not all vendors will carry all equipment and that there is strong variability between vendor capabilities. For any given piece of equipment, it may be necessary to contact a large number of potential vendors. In addition, the availability and price of equipment tend to vary seasonally and annually based on supply and demand.

Scope

Users of this list of sources should be aware that there is wide variability between vendor capabilities; not all vendors will carry all equipment. For any given piece of equipment, it may be necessary to contact a large number of potential vendors. In addition, the availability and price of equipment tend to vary seasonally and annually based on supply and demand.

3 Conclusion

This research has created a comprehensive and up-to-date database and listing of heavy equipment vendors within the United States, primarily for rental or leasing purposes, which includes vendors of construction, agriculture, and other equipment needed for erosion control, and land rehabilitation and maintenance.
Military training can often be destructive to the environment. Environmental impacts associated with heavy training include soil compaction, soil erosion, siltation of waterways and wetlands, increased threat of flooding, loss of wildlife habitat, declining biodiversity, and invasion by noxious weeds. Planning and implementing land rehabilitation projects generally involves some soil movement, establishment of vegetation, stabilization and hardening of sites, etc. Procurement of appropriate heavy equipment and other specialized equipment is sometimes a difficult task that involves obtaining multiple vendors, especially when procuring equipment for rental, lease, or purchase. This report and associated database were created to help land managers easily identify and obtain potential vendors for the equipment needed for land rehabilitation projects. This report includes a comprehensive and up-to-date list of heavy equipment vendors within the United States, primarily for rental or leasing purposes, which includes vendors of construction, agriculture, and other equipment needed for erosion control, and land rehabilitation and maintenance.
